Ottawa Foots Bill For Judicial Jaunt

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 15 federal judges from Quebec are in Vancouver on an all-expenses-paid trip — to improve their English.

The English course, which is organized by the Commissioner for Federal Judicial Affairs, is costing Canadian taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars.

A spokesman for the judges, deputy Commissioner Roger Collette, said in an interview Wednesday night: "I have to tell you that we don't want any publicity.

"Because we are sparing nothing for these judges the population may get frustrated. It is a very special expense — it is the taxpayer who pays it.

"They all speak English, but they come here to improve it.

"We absolutely don't want any publicity. We don't want a member of the House to stand up and raise it.

"We have been to some other places before. This year it is Vancouver. Next year it may be in the Maritimes.

"Some of them have their wives staying — but a judge who travels pays his wife's expenses."

Collette told a Vancouver reporter: "It is interesting for you, you have your work to do, but not for the population at large.

"We restrict publicity on this function. It is strictly restricted — on my orders.

"I am the deputy commissioner. That is enough. You place me in a very embarrassing situation. Please be nice with me. I won't have any grudges. I am in authority," he said.

Collette refused to disclose how much the course is costing or name the judges, who are understood to be from both criminal and civil courts.

Most of them arrived in Vancouver on Aug. 20 and are due to fly home to Quebec Friday after a 12-day stay.

Asked how they are managing to circumvent the Air Canada strike, Collette said: "It is all settled. They are going on CP Air. We have some heavy people, and they made arrangements and I have phoned many places across Canada."

A spokesman for the Bayshore Inn refused to say how much the judges are paying, but he said they are receiving a special rate for government employees. The judges also are renting five of the hotel's conference rooms.

John Fraser, Conservative MP for Vancouver South, said Wednesday he intends to raise the matter in the Commons.

"I'm appalled. You cannot explain this to taxpayers," Fraser said.

"I have to report back to 75,000 electors and I would have no success in trying to justify this jaunt.

Holiday Gloom Forecast

If you're thinking of laying in a supply of sun lotion for the holiday weekend — the weatherman says don't bother.

Temperatures will be below normal.

The only glimmer of hope is that there may be "some moderation" on Saturday.

And there is still the chance of an Indian summer.

Jobs Plan Firmed

OTTAWA (CP) — Details of federal job creation and industrial development programs, firmed up Wednesday at a 4½-hour cabinet meeting, will be announced within 10 days.

Manpower Minister Bud Cullen emerged from the session to say he will have a major announcement on a program already approved.

But "timing of the announcement" has not been decided. The government wanted to pick a time they can clearly get their message across to the public.

The minister is expected to cut the unemployment insurance program and funnel more money into job creation.

Industry Minister Jack Horner said he expects to outline his program of new incentives for business sometime next week.

Earlier Wednesday, Cullen said, the cabinet was discussing how to reduce federal spending on unemployment insurance.

Prime Minister Trudeau, meanwhile, will probably decide next week, following a visit to Rome for Pope John Paul's installation, whether to risk his parliamentary majority in a fall election that would likely be called for Nov. 6.

Aides say no election call is expected before Trudeau leaves Friday for the Rome ceremony. He returns Tuesday, meets Wednesday with the Liberal party's national campaign committee.

HITCH OVERCOME

B.C. Beer Strike Finally Over

The summer-long brewery strike ended this afternoon when the Victoria local of the Canadian brewery union announced all remaining problems had been resolved.

Workers were on the job this afternoon for the first time since the strike-lockout began in May.

"As of yesterday there were some problems with the return to work agreement which the membership did not agree with. We had another meeting this morning.

"We have now left the office of the company and all issues have been clarified, geniality has been restored and we will be going back to work momentarily."

Momentarily, he said, meant immediately and most employees would be on the jobs this afternoon.

The agreement affects breweries in Victoria, Vancouver and Creston.

Labatt's workers at Victoria accepted the Brewery Employer Labor Relations Association two-year contract that provides an average wage of $9.53 an hour this year and $10.10 in 1979, but voted 80 per cent against returning to work until the five brews which were started by supervisors during the lockout were dumped.

"It says union-made on our bottles and that's not union-made brew," union president John Langley said.

The contract offer came last week after five days of intensive negotiations under mediator Clark Gilmour.

Although the union negotiating committees recommended rejection, workers at Labatt's New Westminster plant voted 51 per cent in favor of the proposal and in Victoria approved it by 70 per cent. Molson workers voted 57 per cent acceptance and Carling O'Keefe voted 74 per cent approval.

Because wages at the three breweries, which bargained independently until this year, have been equalized, the increases vary in the first year of the agreement. At Labatt's wage increases will range from 75 cents to $1.22 an hour, at Carling's they jump 83 cents an hour and at Molson's 55 cents an hour in 1978. Wages at all breweries will go up 52 cents an hour in 1979.

Union Infighting Delays Air Talks

MONTREAL (CP) — Real Vaillancourt, president of the Montreal local of the International Association of Machinists, says "there's no question things are really falling apart" within the union as it struggles to resolve the labor dispute which has shut down Air Canada for the last week.

Vaillancourt made the comment after the union's national negotiating committee twice postponed scheduled meetings with Air Canada management Thursday in order to deal with internal dissension which has plagued the IAM.

The 13-member union negotiating committee scheduled a meeting Thursday evening with its 11-member national executive board to try to patch up the differences.

It appeared unlikely the union would meet with Air Canada negotiators before today. The two sides last met Wednesday evening, for about 90 minutes.

Vaillancourt's local— which covers Quebec and the Atlantic provinces and takes in 4,500 of the union's 7,500 members in Canada—has refused to accept two clauses which Air Canada wants in a new contract, and which the union's negotiating team had been prepared to accept earlier this week.

Three Montreal members of the national negotiating team resigned Tuesday over the issue, and on Wednesday they appeared on radio shows and granted interviews in Montreal newspapers criticizing their colleagues.

Vaillancourt said in an interview his local didn't want another tentative contract which would be basically the same as the one rejected last week, "with just a bit of cream added here and there."

Buff Norman, a technician and Montreal IAM member, distributed news releases today calling for an immediate return-to-work agreement.

"We may end up with a split union, with Montreal going on its own," Norman said.

Barry Shaw, chief union negotiator, looked grim when he emerged Thursday afternoon from a meeting with the rest of the negotiating team, saying only that "problems have arisen" within the union.

STRIKE VOTE

TORONTO (CP) — The 18,000-member Letter Carriers Union of Canada was to begin a national strike vote today in preparation for a possible walkout at the end of September.

Union president Robert McGarry said Wednesday he was pessimistic about the chance of a settlement without a strike. He said wages are the only issue.

Cabinet Will Suspend Pot-Puffing Teachers

In the future, the provincial cabinet will suspend the teaching certificates of pot-smoking teachers, Education Minister Pat McGeer said today.

McGeer strongly criticized the Coquitlam school board which Tuesday reinstated teacher Dennis Hilton after he had been convicted of possession of marijuana.

Hilton received a conditional discharge and when a Crown appeal of the sentence failed, the Coquitlam school board said it had no other choice than to reinstate him.

"To say I'm disappointed in Coquitlam's actions would be a profound understatement," McGeer said at a press conference today.

But McGeer, saying he believes in the autonomy of individual boards, said he would not overrule the decision in this case.

But he said in the future the provincial government will "take the matter into our own hands."

The minister said this means the province will exercise a little-used section of the Public Schools Act empowering the cabinet to rescind a teacher's licence for cause.

He admitted such a move would likely be challenged in the courts but said that won't stop him from attempting to impose the clause.

The public must be reassured the school system will not tolerate such behavior from its teachers, the minister said.

A conditional discharge may have been an adequate position for the courts to take but "we expect a higher moral standard on the part of our teachers."

Rights Group Headed By Nanaimo Trustee

Nanaimo school board chairman Margaret Strongitharm has been appointed chairman of the B.C. Human Rights Commission, Labor Minister Allan Williams announced Wednesday.

"I am confident Mrs. Strongitharm's appointment will provide the commission with strong, dynamic and sensitive leadership," Williams said.

The announcement ended an eight-month silence by Williams on the future of the commission.

He had been repeatedly pushed by NDP members to appoint a new commission when the original one headed by Victoria bishop Remi De Roo was disbanded Dec. 31.

Williams denied the cabinet was split over whether to let the commission die, as suggested by Karen Sanford (NDP—Comox), the party's labor critic.

Mrs. Sanford said in a news release Wednesday the eight-month delay in announcing new members was because a "clique of hard-nosed, far-right ministers" would not accept any list of candidates.

"Mrs. Sanford is absolutely wrong," Williams said. "There is no division in the cabinet whatsoever."

Mrs. Strongitharm is the wife of Nanaimo lawyer Ted Strongitharm and has had extensive experience in a wide variety of local, provincial and national organizations.

BOAT TIP FATAL

A B.C. Packers skipper died Wednesday night after his 55-foot vessel capsized and sank in Seymour Narrows, north of Campbell River.

Dave Carpenter of Bella Bella, in his late 60s, died of undetermined injuries before he could be taken to hospital.

The mishap, which will be investigated by the department of transport, occurred about 7 p.m.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said although there was a strong ebb tide at the time of the mishap, weather conditions were good.

The fishing vessel was not loaded, he added.

Five other people were aboard the vessel and were taken aboard the fishing vessel Our Own.

They were taken to Campbell River by the search and rescue vessel Relite.

Pump Priming Urged for Tourism

OTTAWA (UPI) — A federally appointed task force called Wednesday for a wide range of government incentives to reverse the decline in the Canadian tourism industry that led to last year's $1.7 billion travel deficit.

"The main problem is that the Canadian travel product is not meeting the demand of its two main groups of customers," said the 139-page report of the 65-member task force appointed last March.

"Canadians are increasing their travel abroad — and particularly to the United States — at a rate far exceeding the growth of their domestic travel. Americans are coming to Canada in steadily decreasing numbers."

But Lawson said the group, representing an industry that employs 900,000 Canadians and contributed $10 billion to the gross national product in 1977, believed most improvement in the travel industry would have to come from government.

"When our subcommittee got down to specifics one theme kept recurring — the inability of the tourism industry to cope with the legislation and the endless regulations which have been imposed upon us by all levels of government," Lawson told a news conference.

The numerous changes requested of the government included reductions in federal gasoline and aviation fuel tax, exempting hotel furnishings from sales tax, reducing sales taxes to match those in competing U.S. areas and a 25 per cent rebate on property tax.

The industry group requested that tips be considered in the calculation of wages, requirements on statutory holidays be eased and welfare and unemployment insurance payments be tightened because they "sap the general desire to work."

The task force said governments should consider tourism as "an industry in its own right" with the special planning and considerations made for other parts of the economy."

DICK LEIGH

Sidney Mayor's Fighting 'Concrete Jungle' Growth

Sidney is ripe for massive growth but it's not going to happen if Mayor Dick Leigh has his way.

"We don't want a concrete jungle here. We want Sidney to remain a village as long as possible."

With a water pipeline on its way, pressures by developers are fierce, he said, but it would be wrong to give in.

"I realize we must have growth here — a town must grow or it will die — but we must have controlled growth."

The population of Sidney is estimated at 7,400 and could double in three or four years if things got out of hand, the mayor said.

"I would like to see a limit of about 400 or 500 a year. Ideally, I would like to see the town grow to about 12,000 and then level off. We want to remain a quiet community."

Sidney has placed a moratorium on all development until it receives a report from a professional planner in about four months.

After that, it will proceed slowly and carefully and will stick to its community plan.

Leigh said council had held up 700 building permits awaiting word on the water pipeline. Once the pipeline was approved, all permits were given the go-ahead.

"At the time it seemed the right thing to do," Leigh said. "The only reason they were held up was a lack of water. Once the water situation was clear, we gave the approvals."

In retrospect, it might have been a mistake, he said. As it turned out, construction started on 440 permits.

Council acted to rescind approval of the other 260 permits when it became evident Sidney was over-building. Holders of the 260 permits had not started any construction.

"Everything is waiting for the community plan," Leigh said. "We can not afford to have uncontrolled growth in Sidney."

The town could make the mistake of expanding faster than the need, he said.

For example, in walking around Sidney, he had noticed a large number of For Sale signs.

"Why are we approving new construction when there is no shortage of homes in Sidney? We make a mistake if we listen to developers without investigating the needs of the community."

Still on the books for the longer term is a plan to reconstruct the storefronts in Sidney to create a single theme.

This would give the town a community look and would be attractive to tourists.

But it is a matter of first things first, he said.

Flagrant Vegetable Stealing Riles Fraser Valley Farmers

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Farmers in the Fraser Valley are organizing patrols of their fields to stem what they say is an unprecedented outbreak of carrot, corn and cucumber stealing.

"I'm just amazed at what's happened," says John Seeland, foreman of Buckerfields' 2,200-acre Fraser Valley farm.

Seeland said that produce pilferers used to restrict their harvesting to night-time, but now they're "parking by the road, jumping over a ditch, and picking the stuff in broad daylight."

"The cucumbers weren't destined for anyone's private use. My guess would be that they were sold to a roadside stand."

RCMP Constable Murray Ross of Abbotsford said the department has helped organize farmers to watch for thieves, but has discouraged farmers from getting personally involved.

"We've told them not to create a problem for themselves by trying to detain these people," he said. "All they have to do is get a licence number and a description and we'll take care of the rest.

Ross said the usual fine for minor theft is $100 to $200.

B.C. Beer Strike's Over

28 and the new offer is five cents an hour in the first year and a slightly improved cost of living allowance in the last six months of the second year.

Workers lost the major issue in the dispute — retention of the COLA received in previous years. The new COLA will apply only to the second year of the agreement and will be issued in two lump- sum payments.

Vancouver brewery employees could have resumed work today but owners decided to wait until the Victoria vat dispute was resolved.

R.A. Binnendy, Labatt's general manager, said that either all the breweries would open or none at all.

Members of the Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers went on strike May 28 at Carling O'Keefe's Vancouver plant. Lockouts followed June 8 at Molson's Vancouver operation and at Labatt's plants in New Westminster, Victoria and Creston. There are about 1,000 union members involved.

Lawyers Put BNA Report On Shelf

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association today shelved indefinitely a $200,000 report on the constitution.

A resolution doing this was hammered out Wednesday as a compromise. A workshop study on the report Wednesday reached no conclusions.

The resolution drew support from association members who were strongly opposed to a recommendation that the Queen be replaced as head of state by a Canadian.

In debate on the resolution, Brendan O'Brien, of Toronto, said the bar association, as a result of the head-of-state proposal, has been condemned as an irresponsible group and has lost some members, "at least in Ontario."

The resolution said the recommendations of the research study "have been erroneously represented by some as being the position of the Canadian Bar Association." This was not true.

The resolution refers the report to provincial branches for study.

"What is the association going to do?" A.J. Campbell of Montreal asked.

"Is it going to take any position on the constitution? Is the report going to carry forever the stamp of no approval?"

Campbell, speaking from the floor, got no reply from the chairman or anybody else.

Some delegates, pushing the resolution, said the report may be raised again at next year's annual meeting.

TENANTS WIN

Tenants of the Battin-Fielding Memorial complex on Vernon Avenue received a plaque for best over-all improvement at the People, Plants and Homes awards held Wednesday night at the Garth Homer Achievement Centre.

Letters from outside the Greater Victoria area may be slower getting here because of the Air Canada strike but they will definitely get here, according to a Victoria post office spokesman.

He reports mail normally shipped by Air Canada is now being transported by rail or truck.

"The mail goes out every night but it is a little slower doing it this way," he says. "There might be delays up to a couple of days or so.

"However, everything will come through without too much of a wait."

B.C. Fisherman Fined by U.S.

SEATTLE (CP) — A Canadian fisherman was fined and his catch confiscated after being convicted of fishing inside United States waters.

Joseph Negero of Vancouver was fined $1,000 Wednesday but U.S. authorities returned his 9.6-metre gillnetter.

Maximum penalty for the charge is confiscation of the boat, a $50,000 fine and six months in jail.

Negero was the first Canadian taken into custody by U.S. authorities since the breakdown in negotiations on the reciprical fishing agreement between the two countries.

Aussies Veto Nixon Trip

CANBERRA (AP) — A request by Richard Nixon to visit Australia next month and meet with Prime Minister Malcolm Fraser, has been rejected, senior government sources said today.

They said the Australian embassy in Washington told Nixon on Wednesday that a visit in September or October would be "inopportune" because of a "heavy program" of official visits from other overseas dignitaries. The only visitor mentioned was Britain's Princess Alexandra, a cousin of the Queen.

"It would have been an official visit in fact even if not in name because Mr. Nixon requested meetings with the prime minister and the foreign minister," Andrew Peacock said. "The reply was couched in the most polite terms."

Nixon, who resigned as president in August, 1974, as a result of the Watergate scandal, planned to visit China and several other Asian countries after Australia, the sources said.

Nixon made his approach to Australia through its embassy in Washington and indicated he would like to visit northern Asian, Middle East and European countries, but not necessarily at the same time, the sources said.

The Australian government consulted the Carter administration before replying, the sources said, and the administration indicated it was not concerned and "it was up to Australia" whether to go ahead with the visit.

Envoy's Son Left To Die In Field

Times News Services

MEXICO CITY — The eldest son of Mexico's ambassador to Washington was shot during a bungled kidnapping by Communist terrorists and left to bleed to death in an empty field, an autopsy report revealed today.

The report said Hugo Margain Charles, 35, whose body was found by a passerby in the town of Chalco 22 miles east of Mexico City, bled to death from a 9 mm gunshot to the thigh that severed an artery.

The body showed signs the terrorists who kidnapped him tried unsuccessfully to stop the bleeding, stripping Margain of all his clothes but a blue jacket and socks to give him medical treatment, the report said.

The report did not indicate whether Margain was shot by the abductors or by his own bodyguards in the gunbattle that erupted during the kidnapping, which left two bodyguards and one abductor wounded.

Officials had said earlier that Margain was shot by the kidnappers.

The underground 23rd of September Communist League claimed responsibility for the abduction. Observers noted it could have been a reprisal for the police slaying of the group's leader, Carlos Jimenez Sarmiento, 10 days ago.

Police sources reported that a member of the Margain household reported the family got a phone call from the kidnappers demanding $2 million in ransom.

Margain's father, Hugo Margain, is serving his second tour as ambassador to the United States. He also has been Mexico's ambassador to Britain and secretary of the Mexican treasury. He was reported with the family in Mexico City.

KORCHNOI ACCEPTS PEEKABOO GAME PLAN

MANILA (AP) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi has agreed to a peekaboo plan to ensure continuation of his world chess championship match with Anatoly Karpov.

The 47-year-old defector from the Soviet Union will play without glasses, and the Russian parapsychologist he says is trying to hypnotize him will sit with Karpov's Soviet delegation well away from the playing stage, one of Korchnoi's two British seconds, Michael Stean, announced today.

Managua Strike Fizzling

MANAGUA (AP) — A national strike called to force the ouster of president Anastasio Somoza appeared to be losing steam today, but fighting raged between national guard troops and armed civilians controlling much of the northern city of Matagalpa.

No reliable figures were available on the effectiveness of the strike, in Managua or in the provinces.

But only about half of the stores in the capital's major shopping centre were closed Wednesday and most businesses elsewhere in the capital were open.

"It certainly is not causing a crisis," said one diplomat who asked not be be named.

The strike was called a week ago by political leaders opposed to Somoza. It was supported later by the Nicaraguan Confederation of Chambers of Commerce and the Nicaraguan Development Institute, the country's two leading associations of businessmen and industrialists. But the response to the members apparently was flagging.

The archbishop of Managua, Miguel Obando y Bravo, failed in an attempt to stop the bloody fighting in Matagalpa, a city of 40,000 about 160 kilometres north of Managua and returned to the capital to try to see the president.

"It was a scene of savagery like I've never seen," one veteran Latin American correspondent said of the situation in Matagalpa. The correspondent, who asked not to be named, said there was continual gunfire.

SHCHARANSKY FREEDOM HOPES DIM

OTTAWA (UPI) — A Canadian attorney working for the release of Anatoly Shcharansky says the United States is unwilling to arrange a prisoner swap to free the Soviet dissident because it would undermine statements by President Carter.

Irwin Cotler told a news conference held jointly with the dissident's wife, Avital, that senior U.S. officials have told him, "The price of Shcharansky's release was not one the United States wants to meet."

A swap would imply Shcharansky was a spy, a charge denied by Carter last April, Cotler said.

Teachers Strike In U.S.

Associated Press

About 150,000 schoolchildren across the United States were without regular teachers today, and eight Indiana teachers were in jail for refusing to return to work, as labor disputes opened the 1978 school year.

The largest school system struck was New Orleans, where 91,000 pupils were affected but schools remained open.

Teachers were also on strike in Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Pennsylvania.

Other work stoppages were threatened, the situation in many states mirroring that in Michigan, where 192 teacher contracts — about 40 per cent — are still up for decision.

Some school bus drivers are also on strike, with New Orleans bus drivers and maintenance men voting to stop work with the expiration of their contract at midnight tonight.

The issue almost everywhere was money.

A major strike was threatened in Cleveland, where the city's 5,000 teachers were told to prepare for picket duty on the scheduled opening day of school Sept. 7.

Cleveland teachers, who have gone without a negotiated pay increase for three years, seek a 21 per cent salary boost.

300 INDIAN CHIEFS PLAN TO TAKE PLEA TO QUEEN

FREDERICTON (CP) — Canadian Indians agreed Wednesday to send 300 or more of their chiefs to Britain and France in a fight against proposed constitutional reforms.

A resolution approving the unprecedented trip was passed unanimously by delegates to the ninth annual assembly of the National Indian Brotherhood.

It is likely the trip will take place next spring, said one Brotherhood official.

The trip would include a stop in Paris where the chiefs would seek the support of the French government — an idea put forward by Quebec delegates.

Chief Max Gros-Louis said the treaty ending the British-French war over Canada recognized treaties made between the French and Indian nations. The French government could be asked to tell Britain to observe that treaty, he said.

"When the sun began to set on the British Empire the Queen gave Africa back to the Africans," said Clive Linklater, a former Brotherhood vice-president who helped put together the trip idea.

"But the Queen (Victoria) gave Canada to the wrong people."

Approval of the resolution underlines Brotherhood dissatisfaction with constitutional reform proposals presented to Parliament in June by the Trudeau government. Indians have complained plans to bring the constitution to Canada for amendment do not recognize native rights and Indian special status.

Change of Attitude Needed

A decision on a matter as important as whether to establish an industrial park in a bedroom community should surely be one of the most rationally debated, well thought out decisions taken by that community's elected council all year. It should surely be based on the best possible research, the most detailed available studies. In making the decision, council members should surely put aside past feuds and ideological differences to examine the individual proposal solely on its merits.

Yet it does not appear that Saanich council is going to fulfill any of those criteria as it moves to make a decision on whether it should establish an industrial park on a site on Interurban Road. Council held its first major public meeting on the proposal Wednesday, and every indication was that the decision was going to be based on emotional outpourings, hasty research, and mistrust and hostility that have been growing up for years.

Council agreed to hold a public hearing on the issue on Sept. 14, but unless the attitude of several council members changes, the hearing will be little more than a charade, a chance for some aldermen to play out another scene in their political morality play that the audience doesn't want to watch.

To say that Wednesday's council meeting was distasteful would be an understatement. It was marred by aldermen stamping out of the meeting in fury, by heckling from frustrated members of the audience, and by innumerable superfluous charges made against various aldermen and, even more unnecessarily, against Saanich staff members and even the B.C. Development Corporation.

Mayor Mel Couvelier, who usually handles a meeting well, has obviously adopted the Interurban proposal as his pet project, and was much less successful than usual in displaying the attitude of calm neutrality so needed by the chairman of a heated meeting.

Ald. John Mika, who seemed to have calmed down a bit during the last few months, exploded anew with a series of strongly-worded charges against the municipal planning department, accusing staffers of bias, of acting as a front for the supposedly-dead Royal Oak industrial park proposal, and of poor research.

Ald. David Paterson, who in the past has been one of the more reasonable members of council, appeared to have finally reached the end of his tether, reacting with open anger to Mika and also to a representative of the BCDC who strongly criticized the planning department's study of the Interurban project.

About the only council members who made any really helpful contribution to the debate were Ald. Bob Cameron who explained clearly and quietly why he thought a public hearing was needed and Ald. Geoff Vantreight who employed some useful economic data to show why he thought the proposal wouldn't work.

Mika's charges against the municipal staff were clearly out of line, especially when he dealt with their motivations in reaching the conclusions they did. But at the same time it was apparent that the study itself was leading to at least some of the problems. The difficulty was simply that staff had been asked to complete it in eight weeks which is clearly inadequate for an in-depth look at such a major proposal.

Perhaps Saanich council should delay its public hearing until more thorough research can be obtained, perhaps done by an independent consulting company and perhaps comparing the Interurban site with the Royal Oak one since it is clear that Royal Oak is not dead in the minds of many.

Meanwhile, every council member should take the opportunity to examine his own attitudes to see if he cannot help the atmosphere on council change enough that the best possible decision for Saanich will be made.

Water, Water

Three million dollars to subsidize debt charges so the price of water to Saanich peninsula residents can be brought down to more reasonable levels is one of the better expenditures made lately by the provincial government.

The money should go a long way towards dispelling the myth out in the northern reaches of the Capital Region District that the bigger municipalities to the south were deliberately shafting peninsula dwellers, playing dog in the manger with vital water supplies.

Call it a provincial grant, but in effect the cash is a subsidy from the taxpayers downtown in Saanich and Victoria to the scattered communities north of Elk Lake, through the medium of the provincial government.

Politicians have no money of their own to spend, just the taxpayers', and most of their time is consumed in arranging priorities — there is never any shortage of suggestions where money might be spent. The $3 million grant which Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis piloted past his cabinet colleagues is a fine example of skilful priority-making, and the minister deserves credit for it.

At the same time, city-dwellers are nervous that the extension of plentiful, clean water past Elk Lake will touch off a building boom that will see more and more farmland eaten up by housing tracts and pavement. The new water pipeline will solve the present short-term problem of periodic summer droughts, but will it also bring irresistible pressures upon the small peninsula communities to approve innumerable new development projects?

It may take greater skill than was brought to bear in the solution of their water shortage to see that sprawl and unsightly development do not result.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Echoes of Proposition 13

BOSTON — The nervous tic of the American body politic, brought on by that tax revolt sometimes called the California judgment, is showing up all over the U.S. these days but few people are as jittery as the 50 men and women who run the state governments.

Among the governors, the twitching has become almost pathological. Their budget surpluses are drying up, activists are calling for tax cuts and some important federal funds are about to stop.

This week, the governors met in Boston to poke through the entrails and console themselves. Annual governors' conferences tend to be dull and listless affairs, underlining the hard fact that unlike in Canada, leaders below the federal level in the U.S. don't have a great deal of say in national affairs.

But this year's conference was a valuable showcase for the problems that preoccupy Americans in the wake of Proposition 13.

Symbolic Restraint

For one thing, the 40 governors who attended were determined to show some symbolic restraint. They cut out their concluding state dinner, a noisy and expensive affair where the governors and their wives enter the ballroom with a military escort and blaring trumpets. They held workshops, issued grim statements. To a man, they strove to sound businesslike and earnest.

In another bit of neat symbolism, interested governors and their wives got a tour of the famous Filene's department store, a Boston bargain basement that is nationally renowned for its cut-rate prices.

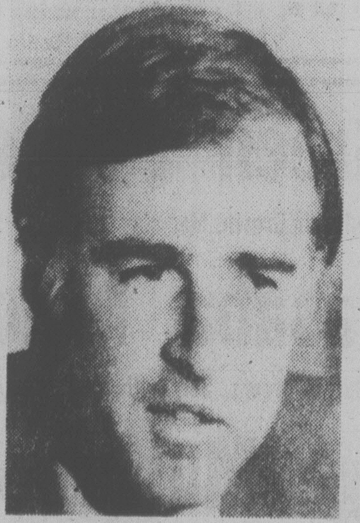
Most striking of all, however, was the zeal with which the governors sought to portray themselves as well-meaning pennypinchers in a time when the American taxpayer is out after the scalps of high-spending politicians and bureaucrats.

When Senator Ted Kennedy, the leading proponent of a national health insurance sceheme, argued that a commitment to medicare should not be conditional on the state of the U.S. economy, they sat on their hands and remained largely unconvinced.

Kennedy, who has broken with President Jimmy Carter on the question of how soon and to what degree national health should be implemented, quoted from a recent poll to show that four out of five Canadians are delighted with medicare. Thus, he suggested, the governors would gain politically by supporting a comprehensive health insurance program, and hang the cost.

He pleaded with them on the basis of embracing medicare as a basic human right. But the governors, with one eye on their tax-rebellious constituents, just weren't in the mood.

California's Gov. Jerry Brown, a born-again fiscal conservative who, once upon a time, described Proposition 13 as an aberration but has since taken it to his breast, gave a fairly typical response to Kennedy's speech. It was so vague and equivocal an endorsement that it came out meaningless.



JERRY BROWN
. . . vague and equivocal

In a typical reflex, the governors wagged their fingers at Washington, blaming the Carter administration for all their dollar woes. "Rules, regulations and red tape," howled the governor of Kansas. "Citizens live to be served, not enslaved" by the bureaucracy, he said.

"There is no base for our currency in this country," complained the governor of South Carolina.

In a group, the governors echoed that familiar refrain of a federal government so preoccupied with regulation that industry was hard-pressed to breathe life back into the economy, even if it wanted to.

Amid all this, on a bleak Tuesday morning, strode the ebullient Robert Strauss, President Carter's chief inflation fighter and perhaps the best backslapper, arm-twister and illusionist in the U.S. administration.

Strauss, a bluff Texan who moves easily among politicians, businessmen, labor leaders and bureaucrats, had come to put a few things into perspective. It was clear that Strauss didn't like the drift of all this blamelaying.

"There's plenty of blame to go around for all of us," he said. For one thing, he told the state leaders, look to your own house. "State and local spending now makes (sic) up 15 per cent of the gross national product, and it continues to increase," he said. The federal government, on the other hand, was decreasing its share of national spending.

Fervent Plea

Then he aimed his six-shooter at big business — "my friends, former clients (as a Houston lawyer) and relatives," who were constantly bitching about government meddling in their affairs, yet were demanding tough government action to resurrect the economy.

"Well, I tell them, 'if you don't want voluntary controls, and you don't want mandatory controls, then want in hell do you want'?"

Strauss wrapped up his improvised spiel with a fervent plea to the governors to do all they can to help in the passage of President Carter's energy bill.

"No contribution you can make to this nation is more important than getting that passed, whether you rate it good, bad or indifferent," he said.

But in the end, the governors disagreed. As a body, they decided that the nation's most pressing problem was a profligate U.S. congress. Reacting to the Great Tax Spasm, they passed a resolution demanding that the U.S. administration balance its budget by 1981. That would mean spending cuts on the order of $40 billion.

"This reaches at the heart of what is troubling this country," said the governor of Arkansas. One could almost hear the echoes of the California judgment reverberate across the room.

W.A. WILSON

Grits Desperate for Power

OTTAWA — The adverse reaction to the government's activities this August stems far more from the way in which it has gone about things than from the actual steps it has taken.

There would be two normal ways in which the government might have proceeded if, as a spin-off of the Bonn summit in July and his subsequent discussions with German Chancellor Schmidt, the prime minister had decided this course of action was necessary.

The most obvious would have been to start work on the speech from the throne which will open the next session of Parliament if an election does not intervene. These various measures would have constituted its backbone. This approach would have been in the national interest because the various proposals would then have been subject to immediate debate and scrutiny.

The other acceptable course for the government would have been to develop these proposals into a campaign platform and then call a general election in the hope that they would prove appealing to the Canadian people.

Couldn't Complain

There could have been no reasonable complaint against either of these courses because both would have fallen well within the normal processes of government and politics. So long as too much is not claimed for them, the ideas themselves have some appeal.

Instead, however, of following either of the normal courses, Prime Minister Trudeau and some of his cabinet have been pretending to react to an emergency when there is none. There are certainly serious problems, but they are of considerable standing and nothing has happened since Parliament recessed in June to transform them into some sudden crisis.

The result of this is that the cabinet, or at least the ministers actively engaged in these exercises, have created the appearance of twisting the activity of government to the electoralservice of the Liberal party. This is morally reprehensible because the function of government is to serve the national interest and to subvert it cynically to the service of a party is to trivialize it. It is not merely the credibility of Trudeau and the cabinet that is damaged by this strange course of action. Much more seriously, it is the credibility of government itself that suffers.

Because the crisis that might have justified such a course does not exist, the government's August flurry is based on falsehood. A similar false premise is being employed to bolster the government's constitutional proposals, in this case the argument that the situation in Quebec makes it urgent to put them through on a short timetable. This claim is totally unconvincing to anyone who is not personally caught up in the government's frenzy.

There is no possible ground on which any one might believe that proposals to alter the structure of the Senate or the mode of selecting Supreme Court justices could influence the outcome of the Pequiste referendum that hangs over Quebec and the country. Proposals for a restructuring of the Canadian federation might influence the way in which Quebec people vote when the time comes but it is certain that these ideas cannot, at least not favorably. It is not the structure of the Senate that preoccupies Quebec nationalists, it is the division of powers under the constitution. On this subject, Joe Clark and the Conservatives are speaking with more substance than the Trudeau government.

It seems to me that this performance is one of the most unscrupulous I have witnessed in a lifetime largely spent in observing politics and governments. And for impulsiveness at the highest level in the country I can recall no equivalent. It seems to me that it displays nothing but desperation to retain power, the only possible explanation I can perceive for such an astonishing course.

Supporting this view is the element of stage management and manipulation that has gone into the entire affair. Announcements have been made so late that television services especially have been left with no alternative except the preparation of a government-dictated package. In the case of Mr. Chretien's late night part in the affair last week, written material was provided early to morning newspapers. The result was that the subsequent stories reflected the coherence of the prepared statements not the disorder and ministerial confusion of the press conference that followed.

It concerns me much less that this involves an attempt to manipulate the media than it is an attempt to manipulate the people of the country, attempting to stage-manage them into an impression of this government that is totally at variance with its record during 10 years of power.

The government's ideas for changes in the family allowance system are of interest, although it has to be remembered that an attempt to put across very similar ideas early in the 1970s got nowhere. Whether these ideas are good or bad, however, the proper way to present them is either in an election campaign or in Parliament so that they can be thoroughly debated and scrutinized.

In far greater need of careful study is the government proposal to introduce a refundable tax credit applicable to the children of low and medium income people. Socially, this has appeal but its economic wisdom at the present time is dubious. It is clearly a first step towards the negative income tax variation of proposals for a guaranteed minimum income. That would be a very large, very costly new social program and the fact that the first step is relatively small does not remove the concern that arises on economic ground.

Incoherent Way

Once the first step has been taken the political pressures for extension will be powerful and it is wholly predictable that the new program will grow in cost and be greatly enlarged in scope. Even the prime minister seems now to agree that his government attempted too much too quickly earlier in this decade.

It is essential that the economy should grow substantially before the strains of new social programs are laid on it. That means that for some years we should content ourselves with the remarkably high level of social justice that has already been achieved in this country. That is perhaps not easy, because in this country we have been reluctant to admit to ourselves how much we have achieved in this respect in the postwar period.

Trudeau seems with one hand to be trying to close doors that he opened earlier and with the other to shove ajar new ones with equally far-reaching implications. It is not a coherent way of going about anything, least of all the government of a country.

PM Likes Queen

During the last few weeks, since the government put forward its proposals for constitutional reform, there has been a great deal in the papers about the Queen and her place in the Canadian constitution.

As one commentator put it, the monarchy can probably survive the republicans, but it is doubtful if the Queen can survive the self-appointed guardians of the monarchy. Rarely, if ever, has there been such an outburst of ill-informed comment by people who claim to support the monarchy, but in fact are simply using the monarchy as a political football, as an instrument with which to attack the government.

Most of these people appear to care a great deal less about the Queen than they do about changing the prime minister. Despite their so-called support of the Queen, they appear willing to abandon her tomorrow if doing so would shorten the prime minister's time in office by a day.

Let's look at the record. Eleven years ago, in response to questions by the press, the prime minister stated that he saw no reason to change from a constitutional monarchy to some other system. Since then the Queen has been in Canada every 18 months, far more frequently than she, or her father or grandfather, or any other monarch has ever been here before. In addition Prince Charles and his brothers and sister, and the Duke of Edinburgh, have been in Canada time after time. Prince Andrew, in fact, was at school in Canada for six months only a short time ago. These visits, in every instance made, incidentally, as the result of invitations from Prime Minister Trudeau, by decision of the Queen and her prime minister, have been informal and frequent. Boring, time-consuming ceremonials have been done away with, and instead the Queen and the other members of her family have met and chatted with large numbers of Canadians. By deliberate choice of the Queen and Prime Minister Trudeau the blatant exploitation of the royal visits and the monarchy that took place during the Diefenbaker years — the years incidentally when our relations with the British government reached their lowest ebb since the war — ended.

Personally, I believe that the monarchy plays a useful symbolic role in our Canadian constitutional set-up. I believe it should be continued. But the hysterical outbursts of partisanship by people who only wish to attack the prime minister and couldn't care less about the Queen makes me wonder if it can survive.

The value of the monarchy in this country is, to a large degree, its non-partisan, unifying influence. By dragging the Queen into a Canadian election campaign, something the prime minister clearly stated should be avoided, these people most certainly weaken, and may yet destroy, the very institution they claim to support. — David Anderson, Liberal Candidate, Cowichan-Malahat.

Cotton Batting

A lot of semi-dissected corpses have been writhing and reeling in the media of late, about the vertigo that they feel when they consider the dire fate of being weened from the Canada Council's abundant lucre. Artsy types, who wouldn't lift a finger to protest or contest environmental destruction or denial of human rights, are frantically penning their MPs re the horror of funding cuts for the arts.

Well, I am an aspiring artist and I would be more than glad to see the massive cotton batting power structure of the vibrantly stagnant Canadian arts scene dissolve from lack of non-directional centralized nourishment (i.e. the Canada Council patronization).

I'd like to see those of us who work our art for love have an even chance with those who toe the line for dollars. — Jim Prendergast, 2560 Graham Street.

Alcoholism: Our Biggest Drug Problem

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
The Globe and Mail

Plague Strikes Windsor, Kills Entire Population, is a headline too stunning to imagine. But Canada does have an illness of such stunning potency, and most of us never give it a second thought.

Cirrhosis of the liver, the drinkers' disease, is the fastest-growing cause of death in the country. In Ontario alone it took 93,930 lives (about the same number as the population of Oshawa) in 1963. Ten years later, as the provincial government's sales of alcohol more than doubled, it killed 210,500 people (the size of Windsor). And the casualty toll is mounting, from cirrhosis and other alcohol damage.

The abuse of liquor, beer and wine — Canada's most popular drugs according to the Le Dain Commission in 1970 — is still Canada's biggest drug problem. And despite competition from more exotic narcotics, alcohol consumption is growing around the world, even among people such as Buddhists and Moslems who damn it as a violation of divine law.

Research drags

By 1975, the Addiction Research Foundation reports, consumption in Ontario was big enough to allow every man, woman and child over the age of 15 to drink 25 gallons of beer, 1.6 gallons of wine and 2.5 gallons of liquor a year. Surveys showed more than half the Grade 7 schoolchildren in the province were drinking; nine out of 10 Grade 13 students were on the bottle.

In 10 years, the estimated number of alcoholics in the country almost doubled, from 237,000 to 525,000. By 1985, Canada is likely to have more than 800,000 alcohol addicts.

Yet research into the causes of alcoholism is falling behind the drinking rate increase, doctors say, in Canada and other countries.

The Ontario government sold $1.3 billion worth of alcohol last year and gave its addiction foundation $18 million, less than $12 million of which went into research.

Finding a way to prevent drinkers from becoming alcoholics is probably further away than a cure for cancer.

No matter how much money is spent, says leading authority Dr. Harold Kalant, scientists will probably never find a universal cause of alcoholism, a single factor that lets one person be a social drinker but turns another (who may drink less) into an addict.

Because there seems to be no single trigger that sets off alcoholics' drinking patterns, "it is doubtful that alcoholism will ever be entirely eliminated," says Dr. Kalant, associate research director of the Addiction Research Foundation and professor of pharmacology at the University of Toronto.

Many factors

Theories on the cause of alcoholism come and go practically with the speed of automobile model changes. "But more and more," says Dr. Kalant — and other leading researchers agree with him — "the bulk of the evidence makes clear that it is a multi-factor problem. All sorts of things contribute to alcoholism in different people. All sorts of factors, and combinations of factors, produce it."

In Chile, a research team discovers a link between addiction and color-blindness, supporting the theory that alcoholism is a form of genetic defect. Within months the find is disproved. In U.S. laboratories, glutamine and glutaminic acid are hailed as potential factors in alcoholism, and as far awayJapan and Finland, laboratory rats are turned into alcoholics by removing glutaminic acid from their diets. In a couple of years the experiments reach a dead end.

Nutritionists advance theories that food or vitamin deficiences are the answer, but further exploration indicates these are effects, not causes. ("If the cause were that simple we would have solved alcoholism long ago," Dr. Kalant notes.) Hormone and metabolic deficiences are examined. Psychologists and psychiatrists look to hostility, homosexuality, traumatic weaning in infancy and the search for self-esteem for the hidden reasons behind addiction. Sociologists examine the alcoholic's environment — poverty, pressures, the wine at family meals, the drinks at parties, the social lubrication alcohol provides.

In a recent thesis, Ralph E. Tartar and Dorothea U. Schneider listed at least 13 pages of models and theories of alcoholism; none emerged as a basic cause.

One theory that does seem to stand intense examination, says Dr. Kalant, comes from a study on heredity done in Denmark, where the lives of adopted childred are recorded in detail into adulthood.

The findings show that alcoholism can be a case of "like father, like son." The sons of alcoholic fathers stand 25 per cent more chance than other men of becoming alcoholics, even when they grow up outside the father's influence. Daughters of alcoholic men are more likely to become depressives, not compulsive drinkers, and children do not inherit a tendency to alcoholism from their mothers, although about one alcoholic of every three or four is a woman.

Team effort

"So heredity is a factor but it is not the factor," Dr. Kalant says. "And we are a long way from knowing just what different constitution it is that these people inherit."

So complex is the search for the hidden urges that produce dependency on drink that the authors of an official U.S. report to Congress just threw up their hands and said, "The causes of alcoholism are unknown . . . Most probably, the condition reflects a form, or response, to an interactive combination of physiological, psychological and sociological factors." In other words, anything at all can start the disease — if it is a disease.

Treatment for alcoholics also lags far behind the increase in drinking. No generally effective treatment has been found. Effective therapies developed so far — moral support from Alcoholics Anonymous, disulfiram pills that induce nausea if the taker drinks — are controls, not cures. In Winnipeg, doctors are implanting disulfiram in the stomachs of alcoholics to provide an 18-month deterrent, and promising chemotherapy is growing in the laboratories, but an over-all cure remains remote.

Alcoholism's unknown causes and undeveloped cures underline the need for a "multi-discipline" approach to the problem — a team effort by medicine, sociology, biochemistry, pharmacology, educators, social workers and jurists.

Ontario's Addiction Research Foundation is a world leader in this approach but even the foundation's present aim is control, not cure. Its immediate strategy is to keep alcohol consumption at current levels — not to get people to drink less, which is unrealistic, but to try to prevent them from drinking more.

It has urged the provincial government to maintain its control measures on the marketing and distribution of alcohol, to make alcohol more expensive, to discourage glamorous alcohol advertising, to increase public awareness of the hazards of heavy drinking, and to package a "danger" message with every bottle sold.

"Through science, education and a changing of attitudes, ways can be found to control alcoholism, to minimize the problem," says Dr. Kalant. "But it is up to society, not to the scientists, to apply the measures."

'If Trudeau Wins He's the Greatest'

DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA—In the membership of the parliamentary press gallery, now some 260 persons strong, there are only three men with more than 20 years covering federal politics in Ottawa. Of the three, Charles Lynch, columnist for Southam News Service, has far and away the best-known name, earned in television, radio and on the lecture circuit, as well as through his five columns per week.

A few years ago, someone, probably Larry Zolf, made a point about Lynch as public figure and self-recognized participant in our political dramas.

"Lynch is as good as a Gallup poll for me," said this critic, "because he is your average Canadian. If Charlie believes or thinks something, you know millions of others also do."

This struck me as an excellent insight. I had thought to myself long before this, without firming it into anything, that Lynch the political commentator was much more a mirror than a searchlight or a magnifying glass.

Among Mr. Lynch's likable qualities as unwitting symbol of the Canadian people is that he cannot be dour for very long. He is rarely mean-minded nor does he hold hard to long animosities. He tends to be mildly respectful of rank, particularly well-educated rank. And he can make fun of himself almost as well as he makes fun of others.

'Most adroit'

This long lead into something Mr. Lynch wrote recently is necessary: If one doesn't see him as symbolic, one may dismiss his judgments as just another opinion from the Ottawa chorus.

The other day Mr. Lynch wrote: "Prime Minister Trudeau is the most adroit politician in Canada, if not in the world, and one of his specialities is turning liabilities into assets."

Then Lynch went on to Trudeau's marvellous political gamesmanship in suddenly drawing all attention to the economic situation, which really is, or should be, his biggest weakness. After reviewing the paradoxes which Trudeau and company are now launched upon as the new tightwads of our times, Lynch concludes: "If Trudeau can pull this off and win himself a fourth term, he will rank as one of our greatest politicians, perhaps the greatest."

Well, both Macdonald and Laurier won four straight general elections, something Mackenzie King didn't manage. Of course, it would be along with these three that Lynch places Trudeau as "greatest". And when he uses the phrase "most adroit politician in Canada" he seems to do no more tha reflect a common view among Canadians, even among many to whom Trudeau is anathema as a person or as a symbol of policies such as bilingualism: "Yeah, things may not be so hot, but where else is there a Canadian politician as smart and tough as leader?"

LYNCH

Doesn't the dilemma for those who would see Trudeau replaced as prime minister lie here? It lies here whether one is a Conservative, backing Joe Clark, or a Liberal who believes his party deserves a more liberal leader.

One may so easily parade through the record of the past 10 years and make a case for bad leadership: The ingrained economic malaise; the Fat City-fat mandarins syndrome; the decampment of Liberal ministers of stronger ability and character; the worsened situation vis-a-vis Quebec, especially if one looks beyond Levesque to Claude Ryan; the deep antagonism and serious mistrust now accorded Trudeau's Ottawa by almost all provincial governments; the faltering sense of mission or destiny or even worthwhile prospects among so much of the population; the continuing switching of ownership in enterprises from Canadian to foreign hands; the lack-lustre cabinet.

Dief mocked

John Diefenbaker's record during his six years in power was not nearly as blemished, yet he was made mock of from one end of the country to the other, particularly by the corporate community and the media's writers and talkers. Somehow Trudeau escapes such odium. There remains a respect, indeed too great a respect, for him, exemplified by Lynch. Trudeau is "adroit." He's seen almost as the greatest, despite an atrocious record of missed and sorry accomplishments, because he's been clever enough to survive and to seem to be in charge, apparently the one masterful man around.

If the Lynch view of Trudeau persists, and I think it a very real view, one held by thousands, then the prime minister is well on his way to his fourth term, his bust on the mantle-piece of history with Sir John A.'s and Sir Wilfrid's.

Birds of a Feather

By DENNIS BRAITHWAITE
Toronto Star

What do Elvis Presley and Charles Templeton have in common?

This, that both are beneficiaries of what Hamlet called "that patient merit of the unworthy." In our way of speaking, their rewards and celebrity are grossly out of proportion to their talent. What is it after all, to sing incomprehensively and write a bad book?

I am moved to these melancholy reflections by the grotesque obsequies attending the first anniversary of Presley's death and by a press release from Seal Books concerning the publication in pocketbook form of Templeton's wholly meretricious novel, Act Of God.

Even (or especially?) the august BBC had a camera crew in Nashville a week in advance of the tawdry commercial celebration of Elvis' recent departure. Jim Wright on CBC's Morningside referred to him as "one of the world's greatest musicians." Take it easy, Amadeus, things are bad all over.

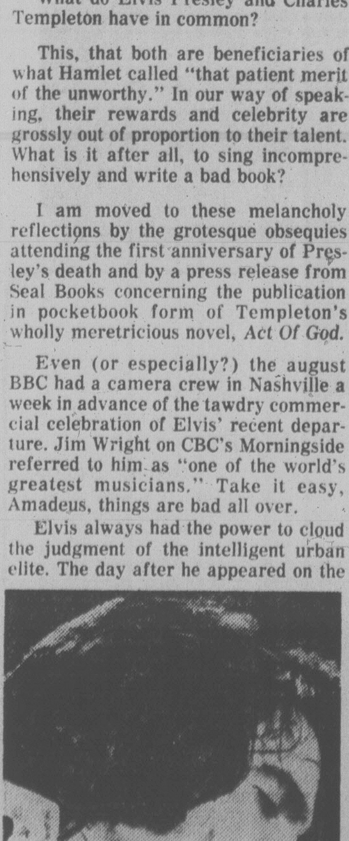
Elvis always had the power to cloud the judgment of the intelligent urban elite. The day after he appeared on the Ed Sullivan show in the '50s, I confessed my bafflement to an editorial-writing friend.

"What is it with this guy?" I asked. "He can't sing. What's all the excitement about?"

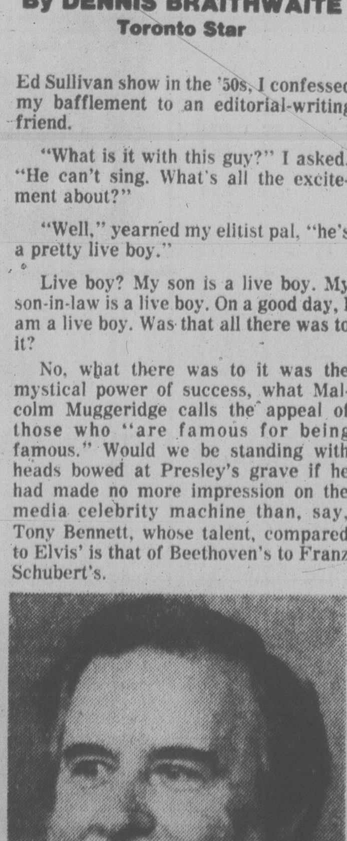
"Well," yearned my elitist pal, "he's a pretty live boy."

Live boy? My son is a live boy. My son-in-law is a live boy. On a good day, I am a live boy. Was that all there was to it?

No, what there was to it was the mystical power of success, what Malcolm Muggeridge calls the appeal of those who "are famous for being famous." Would we be standing with heads bowed at Presley's grave if he had made no more impression on the media celebrity machine than, say, Tony Bennett, whose talent, compared to Elvis' is that of Beethoven's to Franz Schubert's.



PRESLEY . . . clouded judgments



TEMPLETON . . . a bad book

Charles Templeton, says the plug from his publisher, is a "sports cartoonist, evangelist, church leader, playwright, TV and radio celebrity, newspaper and magazine editor, advertising executive, journalist, politician, writer and novelist."

Since newspaper and magazine editors are journalists by definition, the blurb can be justly charged with stretching things.

But there is unconscious honesty in putting "writer and novelist" last among Templeton's accomplishments (if we skip the tautology of writer-novelist. Was Shelley a writer-poet?)

Getting right down to the hard facts of Templeton as writer-novelist, where does Seal Books turn for critical endorsement of their star? To the New York Review of Books? To Harper's? To Maclean's? To Saturday Night? To Rolling Stone?

No, they've lined up some prime suspects, in Templeton's own line of skullduggery, to sell their boy:

"Superb! I was spellbound. I do not recall when I last read a book so totally satisfying in every way. Arthur Hailey."

(Yes you do Arthur, it was called Wheels.)

"Charles Templeton's knowledge of church politics and motivation and the intrigues of power is uncanny. You'll be moved to keep reading. Gordon Sinclair."

"An absolute winner — the best novel I have read in a long, long time. William Stevenson."

Birds of a feather stick together.

What Elvis began and what Templeton, Hailey, Stevenson et al are working to complete is nothing less than the total destruction of our culture. Hold your breath for future developments.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower today amid concerns over an economic slowdown and rising interest rates.

The government said the index of leading economic indicators — a barometer of the possble future course of the economy — fell 0.7 per cent in July. The decline was the first since January and its report followed news that new factory orders slowed sharply last month. The 9¼ prime rate spread to several more major banks today after Chase Manhattan kicked off the round of quarter-point increases Wednesday. The nation's big retailers, meanwhile, reported sizable gains in sales over the last four weeks.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices moved higher in moderate activity on the Montreal Stock Exchange. Consumer Glass was up ⅛ at $19⅜, CP Ltd. ⅜ at $22½, Macmillan Bloedel ⅜ at $22⅝, Royal Bank ¼ at $33¼ and Bank Canadian National ⅛ at $17⅛. Abitibi was off ⅛ at $16¼ and Cadillac Fairview A ⅛ at $10⅝. Among speculative issues, New Insco Mines was up one cent at 54 cents on a volume of 4,000 shares traded.

London

LONDON (Reuter) — Share prices closed easier in quiet trading due to lack of incentive and continuing election worries. Leading industrials were several pence lower but some were finished above the day's lows, they added and an hour before closing the Financial Times Index was down 4.8 at 498.2. Government stocks edged ¼ point lower. Mining shares firmed with the higher gold bullion price and Australians also rose while Canadians eased.

Rexall Hopes to Rise From Bankrupt Ashes

The Canadian Press

To many Canadians, the one-cent Rexall drug store sale was as much a Canadian tradition and institution as the old Eaton department store catalogue, now defunct.

Rexall, held together by a string of fiercely-independent pharmacists, buckled under the competitive pressure from big drug store chains and went bankrupt last fall.

Whether it will succeed depends, to a large extent, on R. A. (Bob) Cote, the young general manager of the newly-named Rexall Drug (1978) Co., now a subsidiary of Webber Pharmaceuticals Ltd. Both are based in Toronto.

For less than $200,000, Webber bought the trademarks, products and drug formulas, plus some assets of Rexall, which it hopes to revive starting with a major promotional campaign this fall.

"With proper management and the right capital, we can bring them back," Cote said in an interview in Webber's west-end office and plant. Cote is also general manager of Webber, which is a subsidiary of Sterisytems Ltd. of Toronto, a major health care company.

Also on the spot in the deal is M. J. (Michael) Needham, president and chief executive officer of Sterisystems, who was involved in the decision to go after Rexall.

Needham and Cote, in fact, were brought into the Sterisystem-Webber organization to put new life into Sterisystems which had slumped badly in 1976 and which lost $152,000 last year. In the first half of this year, Needham said Sterisystems has bounced back with a profit approaching $500,000.

Needham's executive team had been seeking to broaden the base of Webber and Sterisystems for some time.

Webber, which became the proprietor of Rexall, is a small company but has a strong name, particularly as the distributor of Vitamin E. While Vitamin E was attractive to people who were sold on its merits, the high-priced drug had a limited market.

"Now, with Rexall, we suddenly had a new name, well recognized, and we could broaden our line without undercutting Webber."

Webber had to spend $100,000 to upgrade its labs to be able to manufacture the additional products obtained with the Rexall copyrights.

The independent drug stores, like those in the Rexall chain, account for more than half of the total drug store sales in Canada.

Cote said he has not yet been able to determine Rexall's share of the market "but it is part of that 50 per cent plus."

"We don't know who is still a Rexall store," he said, adding there are at least 200 stores identified as part of the chain. In all, there may be a core of 400 stores available for the chain.

Rights Group Appointments

assistant to Attorney-General Garde Gardom, but he is leaving within the month to be chairman of one of the Workers' Compensation Review Boards.

Williams also appointed 11 other members to the commission including Saanich businessman William Eng.

Others on the new commission:

—J.T. Smith, a school trustee in Surrey;

—Sucha Gill, a Vancouver businessman;

—Dr. Louis Chekov, an industrial psychologist from Vancouver with extensive experience in personnel management;

—Prof. Joseph Katz, longtime chairman of the B.C. Human Rights Council.

—Mildred Gottfriedson, president of the B.C. Native Women's Society from Kamloops. She is also a Member of the Order of Canada;

—T.G. Pearce, a New Westminster lawyer;

—Rev. T.N. Vant, an Anglican minister from 100 Mile House and an active member of the Boilermakers Union;

—Ron Jeffels, principal of Okanagan Community College and past-president of the board of directors of the B.C. Epilepsy Society and a member of the board of the B.C. Neurological Institute and Foundation.

While the 12-member board represents a broad range of ethnic groups in the province, Norrie Preston, human rights chairman for Victoria's Status of Women Action Group, expressed surprise only two women are included.

"I think that's incredible," she said. "Half the population of the province is made up of women and the large percentage of cases involving human rights concern women."

She praised, however, Williams' selection of Mrs. Strongitharm, whom she described as a "helping sort of person."

Preston also felt the representatives appeared to be overly management-oriented and pointed out there are no workers, no poor people, on the commission.

In enlarging the membership of the commission from five to 12, Williams said it was the intention of the government that the commission have representation from various regions of the province.

The main office will still be in Victoria, but Williams said he expects the commission to travel around the province.

In calling on the commission to emphasize the educational aspects of its mandate, Williams reaffirmed that the underlying philosophy of the Human Rights Code is the promotion of an understanding of, and support for, human rights principles.

THE Crystal Pool, that ugly duckling among local recreation centres, re-opens Friday after four months of intensive cosmetic surgery, including installation of a swirl pool, above, and extensive new tiling and painting. But the question still remains: Will the public respond?

Can a Facelift Help Crystal?

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Can white elephants be made to fly?

That's the question Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe has to be asking himself these days as the city's Crystal Pool, a $2.5 million recreational blunder that never got off the ground, prepares for its Friday re-opening.

The Crystal has been shut for four months while workmen toiled on a dozen different projects that all had one objective — getting people in the doors.

Since the pool first opened that's been the main problem. The building's exterior gives a distinctly wrong impression as to what's inside, and because of that relatively few people were going in to see what they were missing.

"This has all got to be changed," said Blencoe, waving to the front of the building and the lobby. "We want to warm up this entrance area — it's just too institutional."

In addition the Crystal had to be given something more than good looks — she had to offer multiple recreational facilities. She had to be given a new life.

City council couldn't come up with a magic wand to help parks and recreation committee chairman Blencoe do the job, so they gave him the next best thing, cash. Some $237,000 ($77,000 is to come from the province) has been budgeted to save the Crystal before it sinks into oblivion.

The pool is considered the most beautiful in the region, with a pair of giant plexiglass domes shining down from the roof. But the building that houses the spacious pool, its diving platforms and slides, is ugly.

"We're spending all this money just to try and change this facility from what it was — an institutional, single purpose pool that was really just designed for competitions — into a social and recreational centre."

Blencoe said the Crystal was built before total recreation facilities, like Oak Bay's, were conceived.

"I don't think Victoria's council was in tune with what was happening at the time."

To make the Crystal more attractive a new swirlpool has been added, along with a weight training facility and a pair of saunas.

Although the pool re-opens Friday at 1 p.m., there's still a lot of work to be done, including the "warming up" of the lobby area.

Blencoe says a lot of repainting has to be done in the building to give it more pleasing color schemes, and $3,000 worth of plants will be brought in to lend atmosphere.

Will it all work? Will Blencoe get the school kids, the old age pensioners, the businessmen, the families? Will the changes be enough to motivate the people who've been ignoring the Crystal for the last seven years?

"I honestly don't know if this will do it," says Blencoe. "But I can say that as far as spending the money, this is it."

There are other things he wants done to the centre — including greatly enlarging the coffee area and getting the place a liquor licence — but most of those are organizational things such as new recreation programs.

"Hopefully we have turned the corner in terms of the Crystal being known as a white elephant. I think we can make it a social centre as well as a physical one," he says.

That may be asking for miracles, but the city's parks chairman doesn't have much choice in the matter. The Crystal is here to stay.

SAANICH SLATES PUBLIC HEARING

Industrial Park Blow-Up

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Saanich council agreed by a 5 — 3 margin Wednesday to call a public hearing Sept. 14 on its proposed development of an industrial park on Interurban Road near the Camosun College campus.

The vote at a special council meeting came after 90 minutes of sometimes rancorous, emotional debate which included:

— A noisy scene in which two aldermen left the council chamber.

The charges involving the planning department were aired by Ald. John Mika and Stanley Jobb, project director of the B.C. Development Corporation. (BCDC has agreed to sell Saanich more than 100 acres of Crown land at the Interurban site, and also to act as project manager in the proposed industrial development).

Both accused the Saanich planners of producing a heavily-biased impact study opposed to the development, saying the report is laced with untrue statements, irrelevancies, inconsistencies and distortions.

Mika claimed that instead of preparing an impact study on the Interurban proposal the planners had presented "a brief for the Royal Oak park" — the development proposal which council had killed last March.

Jobb told council the questionnaire used to ascertain neighborhood opinion was "loaded" to solicit opposition with questions of the 'Are-you-still-beating-your-wife?' type.

In the course of Mika's lengthy denunciation of the planning department, when Mayor Mel Couvelier abruptly rejected a point-of-order protest by Ald. David Paterson, the latter stormed out of the chamber shouting angrily.

He was closely followed by Ald. Fred Severson but both returned to their seats within five minutes and Paterson later apologized for his behavior. In return, he received an apology from the mayor.

Couvelier conceded he had rejected Paterson's point of order too hastily, but said even had he weighed it more carefully he would still have reached the same conclusion.

The alderman's protest at Mika's theme was invalid, Couvelier said, because the impact study had included two references to the Royal Oak proposal.

Paterson and Severson were joined by Ald. Geoff Vantreight in voting against the motion to refer the matter to a public hearing.

The trio, together with Ald. Ian Cass, had voted for the proposed industrial development at Royal Oak in the March public hearing.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson, who had urged council's Advisory Planning Commission to recommend scrapping the Interurban industrial park proposal, accepted an invitation to respond to the criticism.

He pointed out that the effects — particularly environmental consequences — of a major development in a rural area are bound to be more numerous than in an urban area.

Laurenson agreed that the impact study's references to the Royal Oak proposal were "unfortunate," but denied that his department was attempting to resuscitate the matter.

"Staff has long since accepted the decision made by council, that it is dead," he said. "This is in no way a brief for or a comparison with Royal Oak."

Laurenson said he regretted most the attacks against his colleagues, "which I don't think have added to the dignity of this chamber."

He said they had done an honest, professional job and he hoped they would have an opportunity to reply to the allegations.

"The slurs upon my own honesty and professional competence, made in the privilege of this chamber, I consider reprehensible," he added.

Immediately after Laurenson's remarks Cass moved a vote of confidence in the planning department. The motion was carried with only Mika opposed.

In his report to the APC Laurenson expressed concern that the principle of urban containment — a basic tenet of municipal planning policy for almost 15 years — would be violated by the Interurban scheme.

He said the department felt this would be too high a price to pay, even for the projected "windfall" profits of $2.7 million that Saanich would enjoy between 1983 and 1986, and the subsequent tax revenue from the industrial park.

Paterson said Jobb himself was biased in his allegations of bias against the planning department, and his remarks to council were in the same category as any developer making a sales pitch for a project from which there was profit to be made.

Among his specific complaints on the impact study, Mika said the planning department had "vigorously pushed and insisted upon" the exclusion of 103 acres of good Royal Oak farmland from the Agricultural Land Reserve, yet was now deeply concerned about the loss of 60 acres of poorer ALR land in the Interurban area.

Cass deplored the fact that a council debate had again descended to sniping at personalities. He said although he wanted to see the proposal discussed at a public hearing, he would vote against the actual rezoning unless presented with fresh arguments that would change his mind.

Severson said he could not support the Interurban proposal for the reasons given in the impact study, and urged council to heed the advice of the professionals in its planning department.

Paterson said he was prepared to attribute the inadequaces in the planners' study to the tight time schedule of only eight weeks they were given to prepare it.

Just because Saanich was both umpire and player in this development game, he said, was no justification for breaking its own rules against urban sprawl's intrusion into the rural areas of the municipality.

Heritage $1M Eyed For South Park

The oldest functioning school in the Capital Region was recommended for heritage designation today by Victoria's cultural development committee and could be headed for a $1 million renovation.

The committee unanimously agreed that South Park School should be saved but couldn't agree on who should pay for it and what the 84-year-old building's use should be after refurbishing.

Committee chairman Ald. Ron McKenzie said the red brick schoolhouse on lower Douglas Street opposite Beacon Hill Park should be salvaged before it falls into total disrepair like the old Crystal Garden.

McKenzie said it would cost $1 million to bring it up to standard and he thought federal funds could probably be tapped.

He said the school would be the perfect site for a residential theatre.

But Ald. Robin Blencoe said the structure has been serving usefully as a school since 1894 and should continue in that role.

"The school board has virtually abandoned the building in recent years and they're to blame for its decrepid condition. We should knock on the door of the school board and tell them they have a responsibility to maintain it," said Blencoe.

The committee limited its motion to a recommendation to council simply calling for heritage designation. The other questions will be dealt with at a later date.

'EARTHQUAKE' WAS THE NAVY

A naval exercise which produced some explosions around 10:30 Wednesday night had some Victorians wondering if there had been another earthquake.

The Esquimalt-based destroyer HMCS Gatineau was carrying out demolition exercises between 7 p.m. and midnight on Bentinck Island off Metchosin.

An armed forces spokesman said today the sound of the explosions was probably carried because of the low overhead clouds at that time.

Canada Council Grant Slated for Symphony

Manager Jean Hunter said Wednesday Hugh Davidson, Canada Council's music head, visited Victoria recently, was favorably impressed and gave a firm commitment that a grant will be made.

Size of the grant is not known but the society earlier asked for $140,000, and received $25,000 as interim operating money for the summer concerts.

Hunter said symphonies never get all they seek.

It will be six months before the mount of the grant is revealed.

Esquimalt to Vote On Library Move

Esquimalt council will hold a special meeting Sept. 6 to take a second vote on the move of the Greater Victoria central library.

Approval of the move to the new provincial government building on Broughton was needed by all four core municipalities. Because Esquimalt was the only municipality opposed, Mayor Art Young exercised his privilege and referred the proposal back to council.

Young is in favor of the move, but other aldermen want the library to own its own building, rather than lease the space from the government.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the municipal hall.

Budgets Win Two of Kind

SAINT JOHN, N.B. — Victoria Budgets, sparked by the one-hit pitching of Vancouver pickup Clem Perini, dropped Newfoundland 5-0 here Wednesday to boost their record to 2-0 in the preliminary round-robin portion of the Canadian senior men's fastball championship tournament.

Perini, who was picked up from Vancouver Thirsk 79ers, struck out 10 batters and was never in trouble while going the distance.

In addition, Perini contributed a triple to the 10-hit Victoria attack.

All nine Budget starters had at least one hit and shortstop Bob Holness led the way with two hits on two trips.

Budgets opened scoring with two runs in the second inning. Bob Burrows cracked a double and scored on a single by catcher Alden Govenlock, who was sacrificed to second and came home on a single by John Green.

Carl Walker led off the two-run third inning with a double and scored when Reg Underwood singled. Underwood then stole second and crossed the plate on another one-bagger by Dennis Eckert.

The final run came in the fifth when Underwood and Burrows drew walks. Both runners moved up when Holness bunted and an overthrow to third base allowed Underwood to score.

Victoria, which had downed Alberta 5-0 earlier in the day; Winnipeg, which also won two games Wednesday, and the host Saint John team, with one win Tuesday and other Wednesday, were tied with 2-0 win-loss records in the five-day tournament.

Victoria was alone in first place in the Blue Division and Saint John and Winnipeg were tied for the lead in the Red Division.

Oshawa, Ont., and Halifax had one win and no losses after play Wednesday while Quebec City had one win and one loss as did Fort McMurray, Alta., Uranium City, Sask., which represents the Northwest Territories, and Fredericton.

St. John's, Nfld., and Charlottetown had won one and lost two each, Saskatoon had lost its only game and the Yukon had lost three.

Quebec's first game of the tournament was a 13-0 drubbing of the Yukon All Stars.

Saint John scored four runs in the first inning and went on to trounce Charlottetown CeeBees 6-1 in the host team's only game Wednesday.

Cliff Bishop of Winnipeg tossed the second no-hitter of the tournament as he led Manitoba to a 7-1 romp over the winless Yukon team.

Peter Briggs of Saint John pitched a no-hitter against the Yukon Tuesday.

St. John's Caps picked up their first win in three starts as they trounced Fredericton, the New Brunswick champions, 9-1.

Nfld. 000 000 0—0 1 4

CITY REFUSES TO CONTINUE SUBSIDIZATION

The City of Victoria won't subsidize the Mussels next year if the struggling baseball team returns for another season, Ald. Robin Blencoe said Wednesday.

Blencoe, council's parks and recreation committee chairman, said the city has so far spent $5,000 in providing the Mussels with a home park.

The team pays Victoria 17½ per cent of the gate whenever it hosts out-of-town teams.

"But 17½ per cent of nothing is nothing," said Blencoe. "If the public isn't prepared to support them at the gate, the city isn't prepared to support them through a subsidy."

Blencoe said the main cost in the games at Royal Athletic Park is for lighting, but keeping the concessions open is also a losing proposition when attendance is low.

The Mussels biggest night came in their first game, late last June, when 800 attended. But it was downhill after that, hitting a low last week when only 125 were on hand.

"Next year we'll have to come up with a rental agreement that pays all the bills," said Blencoe. "We were prepared, during this first year, to try and give them a break, to help them get started. But what's happened is that taxpayers are underwriting professional sports and that's not right."

As the season draws to a close the future of the Mussels is anything but certain. A decision on whether the team comes back to Victoria next year hinges on a possible farm team arrangement with a major league club — but that decision won't likely be made until December.

Players Tussle On the Bench

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

If you think winning makes life easier, then you haven't worn Bill Bryk's shoes.

Bryk manages Grays Harbor Loggers, the Northwest Baseball League team that clinched — at the expense of Victoria Mussels — the Northern Division championship Tuesday night.

But the warmth and hail-good-fellow attitude that accompanies success hasn't quite hit the Loggers.

Grays Harbor players were involved in three different scuffles, amongst themselves, during and after Victoria's 3-1 and 5-3 sweep at Royal Athletic Park on Wednesday.

First baseman Rick Hill and catcher Vito Lucarelli, a former Mussel, were involved in one shoving match in the Grays Harbor dugout. There was a second flareup later between all-star third baseman Jim Gattis and oufielder Charlie Barnes.

Barnes and Gattis rekindled their grudge as the players were leaving the park to board the team bus.

Barnes refused to board the bus and walked the three-plus blocks to the Imperial Inn, where the team is quartered.

The exasperated Bryk, manager of the year, couldn't be reached for comment but another team member said the Lucarelli-Hill confrontation was "a misunderstanding" and was settled amicably. The Barnes-Gattis argument was "a clash of personalities."

It may have originated, one could suspect, the previous night when Barnes was called out on a third strike and returned to the dugout and kicked all the team's bats.

Junior Players Bid for Berths

Players hoping to earn places on the British Columbia hockey team that will compete in the 1979 Canada Winter Games will have a final chance to impress selectors Friday at Mill Bay Arena.

They'll be winding up a six-day training camp for all-star junior "B" players when they exhibit skills in an intra-squad game that starts at 8 p.m.

About 50 players from various sections of the province have been hustling through two training sessions per day at Mill Bay under head coach Colin Patterson of Cranbrook and Dave Andrews, provincial hockey development co-ordinator, has been impressed enough to predict that B.C. will be sending a strong medal contender to the Games at Brandon in February.

Gibson Shares Second Place

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Matthew Shaw of West Paradise, N.S., attacked the windswept 6,600-yard Lingan Country Club course Wednesday and carved out a three-under-par 69 and the lead at the Canadian junior golf championship.

Rick Gibson of Victoria, who at 16 could become the youngest player to win the junior title, was tied at 73 with Rick Sepp of Mount Hope, Ont., and Dan Maue of Kitchener, Ont.

Seven others were bunched at 74, with 19 golfers within four strokes of second place.

Quebec got two rounds of 74 from James Duff and Jean-Louis Lamarre of Montreal and a 76 from favorite Eric Koufmanis of Aylmer to take a three-stroke lead in the provincial team competition.

Defending champion Ontario was second with 227 followed by New Brunswick at 228. British Columbia at 237, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia at 238, Alberta and Manitoba at 240, Prince Edward Island at 246 and Newfoundland at 248.

The provincial competition winds up today and the field will be pared to 70 for the final two rounds.

The strike of Air Canada ground crews delayed the arrival of the Saskatchewan delegation until Wednesday morning and the team manager said the scores were an indication of the condition of his golfers.

More than 17 others were forced out of the tournament because of the travel snarls created by the strike and more trouble lies ahead during the weekend as more than 175 golfers and officials head home.

Lions Late Bid Dies in The Air

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimos held off a late British Columbia charge to defeat the B.C. Lions 18-10 in their Canadian Football League game Wednesday night. It was the Eskimos first appearance at Commonwealth Stadium.

The game ended for B.C. with quarterback Jerry Tagge of the Lions being hit by Ron Estay of the Eskimos while trying to pass to Leon Bright in the end zone with 11 seconds left to play. The pass was intercepted by Ed Jones.

In Ottawa, George Brancato, coach of the Rough Riders, felt it all boiled down to his club's performance in the second half of their game with Calgary Stampeders as the Riders scored 17 points to defeat the Stampeders 27-16. "I told the guys they had to suck it up if they wanted to prove they were a championship team." he said.

At Edmonton, a capacity crowd of 42,768 was on hand to view the Eskimos debut in their stadium after 40 years of football in adjacent Clarke Stadium.

Defensive back Joe Hollimon scored Edmonton's only touchdown of the game when he picked off a Jerry Tagge pass intended for Bright, returning the ball 50 yards for the major early in the second quarter.

Kicker Dave Cutler accounted for 10 other points with three field goals, a convert and a 47-yard single on a missed field-goal attempt. Punter Hank Ilesic got a single on a 53-yard punt.

Although the Eskimos moved four points in front of the second-place Lions in the Western Conference with the win, coach Hugh Campbell was less than satisfied.

"I wish we had scored more points," he said. "I don't want to point any fingers. We'll wait and see."

Larry Key scored B.C.'s lone touchdown on a 38-yard pass from Gary Keithley, who relieved Tagge. Lui Passsaglia converted the major and added a 41-yard field goal.

B.C. coach Vic Rapp thought defence told the story, and it showed in the stats. The Lions had 252 yards in net offence while the Eskimos managed only 216.

"It was one hell of a defensive game," Rapp said. "I think the thing that hurt us was that we didn't play very smart at times, we didn't pick up some stunts and we just didn't adjust."

What upset Rapp the most, however, was sloppy play by his offensive unit.

"We didn't execute offensively. It's unbelievable the amount of mistakes we made. If our offence had played close to the way our defence played, we would have won the game."

Brancato, at first concerned that his charges were more worried about next Tuesday's game with the Als, later realized that wasn't the case. Although, he conceded, they didn't appear ready to play anybody.

"It was a big game because it gave us four points over Montreal and six over Toronto," he added. "The guys weren't looking ahead to Montreal but at Calgary.

"But we weren't ready. Gotta has a good team and they were up for the game."

The Stampeders led 16-10 at the half on a 32-yard touchdown pass from quaterback John Hufnagel to tight end Bob Vickers and three field goals by Cyril McFall. Kicker J. T. Hay provided the Ottawa thrust with three field goals and a 44-yard single.

Then, Art Green hauled in a third-down Tom Clements pass from the six at 9:00 of the third quarter to give the Riders the go-ahead score.

It was a gamble that Brancato didn't think twice about.

"No, I didn't hesitate," he said. "I knew we could do it.

Tony Gabriel then hauled in a four-yard scoring strike from Condredge Holloway and Hay added a 36-yard field goal in the final quarter to finish the scoring.

'Night' Successful Despite Shortness

Heavy rain Wednesday evening shortened the inaugural "Benefit Night" at Western Speedway but about 1,800 fans still showed up to contribute approximately $3,000 to several worthy causes.

Peter Mortel was declared the winner of the shortened stock car main event after rain halted action on the 14th lap. Ken Alexander was second and Al Miller third.

FIREMEN TO FACE KOREANS

Victoria Firefighters, the recently-crowned British Columbia senior Babe Ruth baseball champions, face a South Korean 16-18 team in an exhibition game tonight at 6 at Royal Athletic Park.

The game serves as a prelude to the Northwest League game between Victoria Mussels and Grays Harbor Loggers.

The Korean squad, which plays other exhibitions in Nanaimo on Friday and Vancouver on Saturday, is 4-2 on a tour of North America while the Firefighters aplaced third in the recent Pacific Northwest championship.

Shooters of Note and a Match Race

bill walker

The final stats for the Western Lacrosse Association are out and, if Victoria players didn't dominate the figures, Nanaimo players certainly did, plus another chapter being written in the career of a great WLA veteran.

It's probably old hat now that Brian Evans and Kevin Alexander of the Timbermen finished one, two in the league scoring race, followed by Victoria's Ron MacNeil and then, one back, Norm Baker.

Which gave the Island shooters four out of five top berths and that's not bad.

But there's a name between MacNeil's and Bakep's that should be noted. Again. And that's New Westminster's Wayne Goss.

Goss was all set to pack it in last year, it may be recalled. But later he was prevailed upon to give the Salmonbellies a helping hand. Which he did and he won the CP Air-Labatts three-star selection award doing it, and in only 16 games out of the regular 24.

This is the same award that MacNeil of the Shamrocks took this year and it really does tell the story of a player's talents.

But back to Goss, for a moment. Because this year he was again about to retire, decided not to and wound up fourth in the WLA scoring race with 123 points, two more than Baker. Then in the playoffs, who was at the top of the New Westminster list and in fifth place overall? Goss. And he accumulated his 33 playoff points in just seven games while all the other leaders were playing 10 and 11.

A good record? Certainly, and it also moved Goss into another exalted position in the WLA record book.

For with his 13 playoff goals he now has 708 career goals and that's third high, all-time. The leader is Paul Parnell with 921 and the runner-up Cliff Sepka with 746.

Victoria's Gord Lyons scored the fastest two goals in just nine seconds, and that gave Victoria the honor for the second straight year. Dan Green did it in just six seconds in 1977. Quick? Sure is, but Nanaimo Timbermen's Jim Lynch was pretty fast too when he scored three succesqive goals in 1:43. And on one memorable night Nanaimo's Bob Cool scored four goals in 6:01 and five goals in 11:24. Cool's five-goal performance is the fastest of all time.

Kevin Alexander had a few firsts, including the most goals, 85. He shared the honor of most goals in one game with MacNeil, 7; had most goals in consecutive games, 24; tied with Goss for most game-winning goals, 4; had the most hat tricks, 17; the most man-short goals, 14; and he also took the most shots, 219; and missed the goal the most, 116 times.

MacNeil topped the league in power-play goals with 18 and had the most points in one game, 13. Victoria's Rick Baker had the best shooting percentage (over 20 goals). Baker scored 25 goals on just 53 shots for 47.1 per cent.

Besides getting 106 assists, a record, he had most assists in one period, 7; most assists consecutive games, 51; and most assists in two (17), three (22), four (26), five (31), six (37) and seven (42) consecutive games, all records except in four, which tied a previous mark.

★ ★ ★

So there are a few facts to dwell on. Meanwhile, it's off to Peterborough for the Rocks and Evans should fit in nicely, it says here. And oh, yes, the Shamrock-Peterborough games will be broadcast over CJVI starting with game four, Sept. 8, and going through until game seven, Sept. 13, if necessary. Gary Dalliday of radio station CHEX, Peterborough, which broadcasts the Peterborough games on a regular basis, will call the play, CJVI picking up the broadcast at the second period, about 5:45 p.m. each game night.

★ ★ ★

Otherwise, speaking of match races, the story is that one has been proposed for when the thoroughbreds return to Sandown. And, if it were to come about, it would be a dandy?

The idea is that the three Victoria owners who have three of the brightest handicap stars at Exhiition Park this season, go head-to-head.

That would mean that the Jawl brothers Smiley's Dream or Silent Code, Neil DeMacedo's First Purchase and Ian Ross' Two Bowls of Rice would match strides at the Sidney oval, winner presumbly to take all. Well anyway, that's the idea. Whether it gets off the planning board is the next question.

★ ★ ★

And, oh yes, called out again. It wasn't dates that fouled up Peterborough's scheduled visit for the Mann Cup final here in 1957. It was the eligibility of Bobby Allan. Denied Allan's services, Peterborough refused to take the floor and the CLA called in Long Branch.

I think.

PS. And guess which was the most penalized team in the WLA? No, it wasn't the bellicose Burrards. It was our dear Irish. Shame!

Hudon Just One Short Of Perfect

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

It's obviously too late for Joe Hudon to catch Keith Linton in the driver stakes at Sandown Raceway as Linton has a wide lead and time is running out.

But what Hudon did on Wednesday night can't help but improve his percentage; and, after all, the leading percentage driver of the year gets to represent Canada in International competition. And it was Hudon who represented Canadian drivers in this year's event in the U.S. finishing fifth among the world's best.

Hudon had only five drives Wednesday, but he made the most of them and almost completed a clean sweep.

He had four winners and one second and anything better than that would have been perfect.

It all started with a second-place finish on Clever Dauber in the second as Arts Choice ($5.00), a three-year old bay filly driven by Jim Mohorich, broke her maiden.

Hudon then won on Bold Lobo ($10.20) in the third, Woodys Kat ($7.00) in the sixth, Irish Dawn ($11.70) in the featured seventh and Spindrift Two ($8.80) in the eighth.

Linton is leading with 65 wins while Hudon has 51. In the latest official percentage list (Aug. 23) Linton was on top with .421, Mohorich was second at .365 and Hudon third at .364. Of course, that is probably all changed by now.

Otherwise, it was mostly a night for the chalk players or near favorites with Irish Dawn the only real overlay of the evening, getting away at 9-2 odds and winning handily in the excellent time of 2:03.1. Dustys Monarch and Yankee Mate finished strongly for the place and show while the favored Klinker Jim broke stride but still managed a fourth-place finish.

Best exactor came in the sixth when longshot B.C. Arden finished second and combined with Woodys Kat for a $130.30 payoff.

The three-year old filly Surrey Queen continued to impress with her fourth win in six outings. Surrey Queen placed in the other two. Unraced as a two-year old, Surrey Queen returned $8.70.

Post time on Labor Day will be 5 p.m., which is a change and decreed by cabinet because of the Saanich fair. Also, on the final Friday, Sept.8, there will be afternoon racing starting at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday's starting time will be 5 p.m., while on the final day, Saturday, Sept. 9, there will be the usual 1:30 start.

Larry Sparks A's Triumph

Larry McKinnon's booming bat backed his own relief performance on the mound Wednesday to give Victoria Athletics a 7-3 win over Capital Builders and the Heywood Men's Softball League playoff title in the deciding game of a best-of-seven series at Heywood Avenue Park.

McKinnon smacked a three-run homer in the seventh inning to conclude scoring after hitting a double and a single in earlier appearances at the plate.

On the mound, McKinnon relieved starter Jim Miller with two out in the second inning and allowed Capitals only three hits and one run the rest of the way.

The win capped a successful first year in the league for Athletics, who moved over from the Macdonald Park League after last season.

In Stuffy McGinnis Men's League play, Sooke Merchants edged Elks 3-2 at Central Park. Elks and Juan de Fuca Builders play an exhibition game tonight at 6:15 at Central.

B.C Team Trailing Ontario

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Anne Gookin of Monument, Col., and Anne Tachan of Winnipeg were co-leaders after first-round action Wednesday at the eighth Canadian senior ladies' golf championships.

Gookin, formerly of Truro, N.S., fashioned a 39-41 on the 6,237-yard par-75 Belevedere Golf and Winter Club course prior to the tournament.

Gookin first played the Belvedere course in 1952 as Anne Flemming when she lost the Maritime title to Lib Connor, now captain of the Nova Scotia team.

After first-round interprovincial team play, Ontario had a total of 250, good enough for a five-stroke lead over British Columbia.

The other members of the Ontario team are captain Katherine Helleur, Edie Creed and Mary Marvin, all of Toronto.

Margaret Todd of Victoria, B.C. team captain, carded an 88 and said she's confident her team can bounce back today and overtake Ontario.

In individual competition, Joan Lawson of Victoria is in a three-way tie for fourth with Ontario's Creed and Helleur. All three fired opening-round 83s.

No Blame In Bathtub Death

VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury has cleared Vancouver General Hospital staff of any blame in the death of an epileptic patient found drowned in ahospital bathtub.

The two-day inquest ruled Wednesday Danny Barnes, 26, of Burnaby, died accidentally.

The jury recommended that a patient-call device be more accessible to patients in the tub, and that all hospital staff have emergency access to patients occupying locked rooms.

Barnes, with a 20-year history of violent epiletic seizures, was left unattended in a locked bathroom for an hour July 7, the day he was to be discharged from hospital.

Staff who searched for Barnes were held up for 10 minutes because a kay failed to unlock the bathroom door. A security guard used a screw driver on the lock to gain access.

The jury said access to patient-occupied rooms could be assured through provision of staff pass-keys or installation of locks more readily opened than the ones now found in VGH.

Barnes' mother, Mrs. Alice Barnes, said after the inquest that she is not satisfied with the jury's verdict.

The inquest was called by coroner Glen McDonald to see whether recent VGH deaths were the result of hospital staff problems.

Senior nursing staff testified that it is common practice to either attend or check on bathing patients every five to 10 minutes, but Jessie Law, the head nurse responsible for Barnes's care, testified Wednesday that she was satisfied Barnes needed no supervision because his seizures apparently were under control and he was to be discharged from hospital that day.

Barnes also did not like to be told what to do or to be hemmed in — he wanted privacy, she said.

Williams Welcomes Verdict

Labor Minister Allan Williams said Wednesday he welcomes a court decision upholding an arbitration award made to hospital workers.

Williams said the hearing was the first test of the Essential Services Disputes Act and the judgment indicates the legislation is workable.

On Tuesday, the B.C. Supreme Court upheld a three-year contract awarded to workers at 103 B.C. hospitals.

The arbitration award, requested by the Hospital Employees Union under provisions of the act, was challenged by the Health Labor Relations Association, bargaining agent for the hospitals.

Fish Fee Hike Push

POWELL RIVER (CP) — An increase in fisheries licence fees is needed to constrain the growth of fleet capacity and fishing costs, says Alex Fraser, a Vancouver economist with the federal fisheries ministry's salmon enhancement program.

Fraser, in a paper presented to a fisheries symposium sponsored by the University of British Columbia and the federal fisheries ministry, said current annual salmon licence fees of $1 million represent only one per cent of the $100 million landed value of salmon in 1977.

He said excessive returns to fishermen are largely responsible for the huge outlays for bigger and better fishing boats in an industry that is already heavily overcapitalized.

In addition, Fraser said, consideration should be given to imposing a resource value based fee, such as a landings royalty.

Fraser's recommendations were countered in a comment paper presented by Dr. Peter Pearse, UBC economics professor, and James Wilen, assistant professor in environmental studies at the University of Washington.

UBC PACT OKAYED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clerical and library employees at the University of British Columbia have voted to accept a new one-year contract with the university, averting a strike that threatened to disrupt student registration which begins next week.

Michelle McCaughran, of Local 1 of the Association of University and College Employees (AUCE), said the contract gives the 1,300 members a wage increase of $45 a month beginning Oct. 1, 1978.

$300B Energy Warning Given by Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada will have to spend as much as $300 billion over the next dozen years to become reasonably self-sufficient in energy resources, Robert Bonner, British Columbia Hydro chairman, said Wednesday.

Canada might have to enter a special energy export deal with the United States to pay the bill, Bonner said in a speech to the annual conference of the Northwest Public Power Association.

He said that nowhere in Canada, not even in B.C. with its huge stores of water and coal, can energy needs be met for more than 20 years through conventional power sources.

"We must reawaken the public to the need, if not necessarily the desirability, of nuclear power development," Bonner said. "Nuclear power is growing rapidly in Ontario, starting in Quebec, soon will be needed in the Maritimes and eventually will be needed in B.C."

He said the public also must be made aware of the long lead-in time — as much as 15 years — in providing new power sources, and the complexities facing even the most straightforward development.

Officer Cleared

FORT ST. JAMES (CP) — A knife-wielding 18-year-old Terrace man shot to death here by an RCMP officer April 15 died of misadventure, a coroner's jury ruled Wednesday.

Vernon Darryl Benson died as the result of internal bleeding caused by a wound inflicted by the service revolver of Constable R. R. Davidson, the jury ruled.

The four-man, two-woman jury attached no blame, and ruled the officer had acted within his jurisdiction in the performance of his duty.

LANGLEY FOLK BEAT HOME PLAN

LANGLEY (CP) — A home for eight emotionally disturbed teenage girls will not be built in this Fraser Valley community in the face of resident's opposition, a spokesman for a non-profit society sponsoring the facility said Wednesday.

"We've decided basically that our clients have enough problems that we don't have to add to them," said Bob Malcolm. "The proposed location would not be a good atmosphere in which to attempt to treat them."

The foundation now must resume looking for a suitable home and seeking a long series of approvals.

"Meanwhile the girls who would have come to Thetis House will be denied access to the resource which could have helped them," he said.

Supporting residents, Langley council sought a British Columbia Supreme Court injunction against the home, but when that was turned down, residents erected a wire and log barricade Friday at the home's proposed site.

They said real estate values would be adversely affected by the home, which would join a vocational centre for mentally-handicapped males and a foster home already in the neighborhood.

Bike Gang War in Canada

Police Step Up Manhunt

EDMONTON (CP) — RCMP issued an alert Wednesday in Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan and the Northwest Territories as the search intensifies for a suspect in a Lethbridge murder.

"The suspect is obviously moving around," Sgt. Neil Anderson of the Lethbridge detachment said in a telephone interview Wednesday.

A Canada-wide warrant has been issued for the arrest of Randy Jay Roo, 22, who escaped from a day-release centre of the Lethbridge Correctional Institute a week ago.

Police said the body of Janice Renee Wilde, 22, was found Friday on a farm near Lethbridge after she was apparently abducted at knifepoint from a laundromat and forced to drive out of the city.

A man who was driving on Sunday near Westlock, about 70 kilometres northwest of here, claimed he had given a ride to a man fitting the suspect's description. But RCMP were told that on Monday night, Roo might have been spotted by campers at a provincial park near Red Deer.

OTTAWA (CP) — Two United States motorcycle gangs are trying to take control of Canadian motorcycle gangs and their illicit drug trade, the Ontario Provincial Police commissioner, Harold Graham, warned today.

The Hell's Angels and The Outlaws are making "concerted efforts to infiltrate and control existing Canadian gangs," he said.

"The traditional animosity and extreme rivalry existing between these two gangs, which know no borders, can be expected to cause a dramatic increase in levels of violent criminal acts across Canada," Graham said.

"I wouldn't say they are homicidal, but they are known for being guilty of assaults and rapes and crimes of that nature."

The average Canadian citizen probably will not come in contact with the motorcycle gangs, Graham said, and the violence will be directed against other criminals. At stake is a highly profitable drug trade.

Graham was speaking to reporters at the 73rd annual convention of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

Although the chiefs said cooperation of the news media is essential in combatting organized crime, their session on the subject was closed. This was because names of known organized crime figures and new electronic surveillance methods were discussed, Graham said.

Police find it easier to combat motorcycle gangs than to detect and fight organized crime in other areas. White-collar crime is a growing worry for police, he said.

"Despite publicity concerning the success of organized crime, well-intentioned businessmen continue to play into the hands of organized crime figures," said a report by the chiefs' committee on organized crime.

Businessmen may seek loans from loansharks and then find they are in over their heads with 100 per cent interest rates, Graham said.

"This is not limited to just proprietors of grocery stores, laundries, appliance outlets and other businesses. It all applies equally to the top executives of prosperous, respectable, well-established corporations of all sizes."

CAREFUL, CHILDREN, TV ADS HAVE WARTS

TORONTO (CP) — Researchers have found a way to make children less susceptible to television commercial appeals, the American Psychological Association convention was told Wednesday.

The researchers produced two 15-minute films, The Six-Billion-Dollar Sell and Seeing Through Commercials — designed to teach children to recognize the persuasion techniques used in commercials.

Five researchers, one from McGill University in Montreal and four from Stanford University of California, said in a report that the films made young test viewers in California more skeptical and critical of commercial messages.

Sexism Complaint Laid Against School

TORONTO (CP) — A 25-year-old woman has complained to the Ontario Human Rights Commission, after being refused a job teaching industrial arts for reasons of sex.

Catherine Gray said she was told her application for the teaching post at North Norwich public school in Oxford County had been rejected because, as a woman, she would not be right for the community.

The rights commission is investigating her complaint.

Brian Rice, principal of North Norwich, said in an interview Wednesday that community acceptance is a factor in his hiring policy.

"One of the criteria I look at is whether the person can function in the community and be acceptable to it," he said.

The school is in the village of Burgessville, Ont., about 20 kilometres south of Woodstock.

Rice described the area as traditional. He said it would take perseverance for a woman to teach industrial arts because it is traditionally considered a male teaching area.

Industrial arts includes woodworking, metalworking, welding and other mechanical skills.

Miss Gray, who later obtained a job in High Prairie, Alta., graduated this summer from the University of Toronto's faculty of education.

Douglas Long, chairman of the faculty's industrial arts department, said many principals have welcomed women industrial arts teachers.

Miss Gray said she answered an advertisement in May seeking a teacher for Grade 7 and 8 industrial arts classes and was interviewed by Rice in June.

The job was offerred to an experienced male applicant, but he decided not to take the job and some of Miss Gray's classmates were asked to reapply.

Miss Gray said she telephoned Rice to ask for the job, but was told she could not be hired.

Rice said he didn't feel Miss Gray was facing up to the fact that industrial arts is traditionally a man's field.

When she told the rights commission about her complaint she was told to call Rice again in case he had changed his mind.

Miss Gray called Rice on June 23. She says Rice told her he felt she would have similar problems elsewhere.

Polio Victim On Mend Victim's Mom Still Anti-Shot

TORONTO (CP) — A member of the Netherlands Reformed Congregation whose son is recovering in hospital from paralytic polio said Wednesday the ordeal has not changed her religious beliefs.

"I still think we believe the same," said Marsha Van Manen of Oxford County, member of the religious sect which opposes immunization on religious grounds.

"I think people try to protect themselves (with vaccinations) which is a good thing, but I think there's One above who has to protect us all," she said in an interview.

Her son Ronald, 15, has been in hospital three weeks and she said doctors believe he will recover completely. "He walks around now, he doesn't limp or anything. It was really slight paralysis on the left side."

William Butt, medical health officer for Oxford County, said this week that Ronald and two other polio victims in the county would be affected for the rest of their lives.

Mrs. Van Manen said polio tests on other members of her family were negative and she denied reports that the family had visitors from the Netherlands, where 102 persons contracted the disease this summer.

'Legion' Disease In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A case of legionnaire's disease was discovered in Toronto in June, the Ontario health ministry reported Wednesday.

The ministry said the case is isolated and the disease is contained.

A 38-year-old man was admitted to hospital May 24 suffering from symptoms of pneumonia and six days later his condition was diagnosed as bacterial pneumonia.

But tests at a ministry laboratory confirmed June 23 the man was suffering from legionnaire's disease.

A ministry spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said information about the case was not released earlier because of the "hysteria" surrounding cases of polio reported in Ontario in July.

The case is the second reported in Canada.

Mexico Case Pushed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Mexican embassy here is strongly pushing Mexican authorities for results in investigating a rape and robbery involving an Ottawa couple during their honeymoon in Mexico this summer, says embassy official Francisco Olivares.

Olivares said Tuesday he went to Mexico recently to discuss the case with the Mexican attorney-general and that Miguel Aleman, head of Mexico's tourist council, is also actively pursuing the case.

"We haven't been able to come up with any solution to the case," he said. "We don't want to invent anybody, saying we caught the assailants when we haven't."

The Ottawa couple, who gave their names as Beaudoin and Sirois, said they were travelling in a van in the Mexican state of Oaxaca when they were roused from sleep one night by men claiming they were police.

After the men searched their van, the two Canadians were driven some distance away where Sirois, the husband, was tied up and thrown in a ditch, they said.

Classic Sailboats!

Between 50 and 60 classic sailboats from Vancouver, Anacortes, Friday Harbor, Point Townsend, and Seattle will be in the Inner Harbor this weekend for the first annual Classic Sailboat Festival.

The event is being sponsored by the Victoria Real Estate Board, the Victoria Gaffers Association and the Captain Cook Bicentennial Committee.

Among those taking part will be well-known designer Jay Benford of Friday Harbor and his schooner Sunrise.

Some boats will arrive Friday but most will reach Victoria Saturday.

Registration will take place aboard Harvey Merritt's Tahitian ketch Hanna, which will be near the Causeway.

A children's dinghy rowing race is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Climax of the festival will be the sailpast on Sunday. The boats will leave the Inner Harbor at 10 a.m., powering out to Shoal Point at the entrance of the harbor.

There they will hoist sail, sailing past the Ogden Point breakwater, straight out to two miles south-southeast of the quarantine pilot buoy, then over to Brotchie Ledge. The salute will be taken aboard Don Oaks' MV Falcon, which was built in 1922.

The boats will return to the Inner Harbor between 2 and 2:30 p.m. for judging. The judges will be local sailboat designer Fred Fredette, Bob Leach, president of the Victoria Gaffers Association, and Capt. Keith Cameron, curator of the B.C. Maritime Museum.

Union Fighting UIC-Repay Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAWU) will go to bat for union members who have been asked to repay an unemployment insurance overpayment caused by an computer error in the Employment and Immigration Commission.

Bert Ogden, UFAWU welfare director, said Wednesday that a number of union members have been asked to repay some of the unemployment insurance benefits they received in April and May, 1977.

Ogden said his department expects to launch legal proceedings protesting the move.

Ogden said he doesn't know how many members are affected.

The overpayments totalled $1.1 million to 4,395 recipients in B.C.

"The commission can write off overpayment if it can be shown that it can cause undo hardship.," Ogden said. "Some of the cases will certainly cause undo hardship for the unemployed workers who have to pay the money back."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Of all the types of bridge games, a team-of-four match is considered to be the most skillful. The reason becomes evident when one realizes that in a team game, one half of a team occupies the North-South seats, while their partners sit in the East-West seats on the same deal. Thus, for example, if on a given deal North-South scores 150 points and on the replay of the same deal their East-West teammates lose only 100 points, the team has made a net profit of 50 points.

On occasion, however, the element of skill vanishes, and is replaced by "luck." Such was the case in today's deal.

North-South vulnerable.
South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	5 ♡	Pass
6 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♡.

West's opening lead of a trump against South's six-heart contract was taken by East's ace, after which East returned his remaining trump. South was now a "dead duck" no matter where he decided to win the trick. Dummy's king and queen of spades, plus the queen and jack of clubs, were now uncashable, since South had no way of reaching dummy. When play had ended, declarer had lost one heart and two diamonds.

With any lead but a trump, South would have made 12 tricks with ease. Let's say a club, the unbid suit, had been opened. After winning the trick with the club king, declarer would have cashed the spade ace. Next would come the ace of diamonds, and this would be followed by the ruffing of a diamond. On the king of spades South would discard his remaining low diamond. Trumps would then be drawn, and the defenders' only trick would be East's ace of trumps.

When the deal was replayed, North arrived at a six-spade contract. This contract was a poor one, since its success depended on avoiding the loss of a trump trick. This, in turn, depended on the six outstanding trumps being divided 3-3, a 36 per cent chance. But, as is evident, luck prevailed, for East and West had been dealt three spades apiece; and North's only loser was a trick to East's ace of hearts.

Satellites Probe Forest Fire Potential

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Satellite imagery of Canadian forests is available as a firefighting tool that could save millions of dollars in suppression costs each year, a fire researcher said here Wednesday.

Dr. Peter Kourtz, of the Forest Fire Research Institute in Ottawa, told the 5th Canadian Symposium on Remote Sensing that a system using satellite images and computer technology had been developed to show accurately the makeup of the northern forest in parts of Quebec, Ontario and Saskatchewan.

At a cost of about $500,000 the system has become attractive considering the time it saves and the data it supplies for early decisions by fire control officers, Kourtz said.

The forest is constantly changing, he said. It has no homogenous areas that would make it easy to classify, but is forever being cut, burned off, reforested and mixed between hard and softwood species or between slash and new growth. Some is accessible by roads, much is cut off by rugged wilderness; some has adequate water supply for firefighting, some fires have to be fought with aerial tankers.

Kourtz said the application of Landsat satellite data to forest fire control is a means of getting the new technology into the field where fuel maps are needed to help fire control officers determine the potential of an outbreak, how many men and what equipment will be required. The decision not to send a tanker, for example, could save $2,000-$3,000 per flight.

Fire in a hardwood stand will burn slower than a fire in balsam fir, he said.

The system devised by FFRI has worked successfully for three seasons in a 30,000 square mile region of Quebec, a similar area in Ontario and in 100,000 acres of northern Saskatchewan.

INDUSTRIAL remote sensing by TV camera and infrared photography reveal hot spots in demonstration by Gary Thomas. White blotches on image are high heat-loss areas of subject's face.

SYMPOSIUMS TAKING ON AIRS OF TEACHING SCIENCE FAIRS

As with the 5th Canadian Symposium on Remote Sensing this week at The Empress, there are so many new subjects to be covered it is impossible to hold formal sessions for all of them, where selected researchers give prepared papers and slide shows.

Instead, said organizer Dr. James Gower, of the Institute of Ocean Sciences at Patricia Bay, most of the current four-day program is devoted to stand-up presentations and two half-days to poster sessions in which delegates can roam at random through an exhibit hall where topics are posted with accompanying photos, graphs, charts and other visual aids.

There were 70 subjects covered in this way Tuesday and Wednesday in the hotel, compared with 35 subjects delivered orally to delegates on the conference floor.

Poster subjects ranged from forest fire management and tree identification, to heat loss and attic ventilation studies, to strip-farming and iceberg monitoring.

HCBC Bid-Rigging Denied

Allegations of strange goings-on in the bidding for the purchase of the B.C. Housing Corp. were dismissed Wednesday by Housing Minister Hugh Curtis as being "essentially political."

Three of the four bids for the purchase of the two segments of HCBC were tendered by executives of the corporation giving rise to suggestions insiders must know something other people don't.

NDP MLAs have been calling for a special meeting of the all-party Crown corporations committee to investigate the situation.

But Curtis brushed aside the allegations saying the sales advisory committee members, who will be reporting to him later today on the acceptability of the bids, are "highly professional" and "people of integrity."

And he said there was never any question of barring insiders from making bids — and in fact it was not unexpected — to purchase the government corporation which has about $20 million in assets.

Some political and real estate observers had suggested HCBC employees should be excluded from making bids.

High bid on the real estate portion of HCBC was $10.5 million, tendered by a group headed by HCBC president W. J. Webb and marketing vice-president P. J. Doyle.

Although assets are set at about $20 million, HCBC officials say that amount does not take into account the corporation's liabilities.

Private industry didn't go out of its way to make bids, although the sale of the corporation (originally the NDP's Dunhill Corporation) was prompted because of a Socred policy, to get out of public ownership.

Some observers in private industry say insider bidding has scared off competition.

But sales committee chairman Tom Tonybee said all information about a Crown corporation is public.

Bus Bid Parents Hopeful

DUNCAN — Parents in the Mill Bay-Shawnigan Lake Area hope to get increased school busing for their children following a meeting with a ministry of education official in Victoria.

Darryl Muralt, responsible for all school busing within the province, assured the parents he would be meeting School District 65 trustees next week to discuss the problem.

Ministry of education regulations set walking limits for students of 2.5 miles for grades 1 to 3 and three miles for grades 4 to 12, but transportation can be provided for youngsters within these limits, and subsidized by the province, if the ministry of highways and the RCMP agree walking is dangerous in a specific situation.

Parents had earlier sent protests to the school trustess and the Cowichan Valley Regional District when courtesy bus service — paid for out of local taxes — was cancelled.

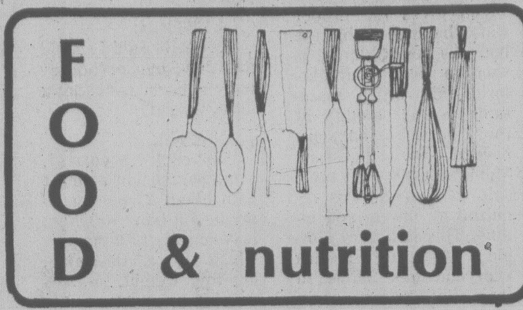
Whole Fish Often Beat Fillets

By PIERRE FRANEY



Given a choice of fish fillet or whole fish, the average North American would undoubtedly settle for the fillet. In a sense, where the character and flavor of most fish is concerned, this is unfortunate, because fish cooked with their bones intact are generally more distinctive. It is no fantasy: the nearer the bone the sweeter the meat.

The bone structures of fish vary considerably, and certain fish — shad, for example — possess an elaborate configuration of bones that makes filleting highly desirable. One of the finest fish to swim in North American waters is whiting, a classic example of a fish that is best when cooked and served with bones intact. There is one major bone structure from gills to tail, and this can be removed with a single motion. The diner is left with a fine white mass of sweet-tasting, solid, tender flesh on which to feast.

Whiting (I am thinking mainly of small whiting, one fish per person) is a fish of such delicate nature that it doesn't really need much embellishment outside of a few drops of lemon juice. And whiting is a cinch to prepare. The fish is dipped in milk, coated with flour and deep fried in fat four or five minutes. It is then drained quickly and served.

This gives the cook ample time to concentrate on other materials or side dishes. Because of its admirably clean taste, a fish like whiting is best complemented with a vegetable dish with considerable contrast in flavors, such as provencale ratatouille or its North American equivalent, eggplant creole with the traditional blending of celery, onions and green peppers. This, too, is an easy concoction to make. It demands, once the ingredients are blended, 25 minutes cooking time. For this menu it is best to have the eggplant cooking, then cook the fish.

DEEP-FRIED WHITING

4 Medium-size whitings, about 1¾ pounds cleaned weight (without heads)
1½ Cup milk
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1½ Cup flour
Fat for deep frying
Lemon halves and parsley sprigs for garnish.

1. Using a pair of heavy kitchen shears, cut off the fins from the back and sides of the fish. Rinse the fish well in cold water and drain.

2. Put the fish in a dish and add milk. Salt and pepper to taste. Remove them from the milk and dredge immediately in flour.

3. Heat the oil for deep frying and cook the fish four to five minutes. Drain on absorbent paper towels. Serve hot, garnished with lemon halves and parsley sprigs. Serve with boiled potatoes if desired.

Yield: 4 servings.

EGGPLANT CREOLE

1 Eggplant, about 1¼ pounds
1 Green pepper, cored and seeded
1 Tomato, about 1 pound, cored
¼ Cup peanut, vegetable or corn oil
1 Cup onion, coarsely chopped
1 to 2 Teaspoons of finely chopped garlic
1 Cup celery, diced
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 Bay leaf

1. Peel the eggplant and cut it lengthwise into one-inch slices. Stack the slices and cut them into one-inch strips. Cut the strips into one-inch cubes. There should be about five cups.

2. Cut the green pepper into one-inch pieces. There should be about one-half cup.

3. Cut the tomato into one-inch cubes. There should be about two and half to three cups loosely packed.

4. Heat the oil in a deep, heavy skillet and add the cubed eggplant, onion, garlic and celery. Add salt and pepper to taste.

5. Cook, stirring often, about three to five minutes and add the green pepper. Cook, stirring occasionally, about two minutes. Add the tomato, bay leaf, salt and pepper. Cover closely and cook 25 minutes.

Yield: 4 servings.

New York Times

CRUMBED CURRIED CHICKEN LIVERS

1 lb. chicken livers
1 cup (approx.) fine (blenderized) breadcrumbs
1 egg, beaten
1½ tbsp. dried parsley flakes
1 or 1½ tsp. curry powder
¾ tsp. salt
2½ to 3 tbsp. butter

Steam the livers covered until just firm — about 10 or 12 minutes.

Cool on plate to room temperature to firm up. Cut each liver into four pieces.

Mix crumbs, parsley flakes, curry powder and salt in another shallow dish.

Dip liver pieces in egg, then in crumb mixture to thoroughly coat and transfer to big plate to rest for 15 or 20 minutes.

Melt butter in large frying pan until bubbly and add livers and quickly saute until golden. Hover over the pan all the time as these must be cooked quickly. Turn to brown other side — about 5 minutes in all. These are super when hot and surprisingly good cold and a real find to serve on a cold luncheon plate in the summer.

Shellfish can provide much eating pleasure!

In Canada, several varieties of clams are harvested both on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. Hard-shelled and soft-shelled clams are particularly good when they are bought live and then cooked and served in the shell.

Although mussels can also be found on both coasts, they are harvested commercially on the Atlantic. The shells may be opened with a knife but are usually steamed open.

The 44-page booklet Shellfish-A-Plenty also offers information about the harvesting of crab, lobster, oysters, scallops, shrimp and squid and presents dozens of delicious shellfish recipes.

In some people, the mention of squid conjures up a horrifying image of a tentacled monster. However, long ago, cooks in other countries discovered that squid lends itself to a variety of tasty dishes. Squids are delicious stuffed, in salads, or cooked in a tangy tomato sauce.

In addition, the booklet explains and compares the nutritive value of the different types of shellfish. In general, shellfish are fairly low in calories and fat and high in protein.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle - Don't turn to a relative for help with a personal money problem. The 'interest' will be too high.

6-10 Neutral Cycle - Keep your body in top shape by eating the right foods and getting lots of rest. Your health could be better.

11-15 Positive Cycle - You look great and feel great...but don't overdo it. Remember that beauty is more than skin deep.

Is it normal for a husband and wife to quarrel? Personally, I just can't see how two people living together can avoid the occasional harsh word. But keeping the domestic peace is easier if you both check your Bio-dex. The secret is to stay away from discussion of controversial topics when either of you has an emotional index of two or less. Try it — you may be surprised how well it works.

WHAT TO FEED SOCCER PLAYERS

QUESTION:
My son is a regular player on the local soccer team. What foods should he eat before a game?

ANSWER:
In a keyed-up emotional state an athlete's digestive processes may be slowed down. Therefore your son should eat an easily digested meal no later than three hours before game time. He should avoid foods that are high in fat or oil, as they are more slowly digested. The meal should preferably contain foods high in easily digested carbohydrate. For a light pregame meal some athletes choose a poached egg, toast, and hot tea. Others choose commercially prepared liquid meals because nutrients in these meals are quickly digested and absorbed by the body. Liquid meals should be limited to pregame use only as they are not a good substitute for regular meals.

QUESTION:
What is ordinary table salt?

ANSWER:
Ordinary table salt is sodium chloride which is a salt formed from the combination of sodum and chlorine, two minerals that are essential in human health. Sodium is required to maintain the correct osmotic pressure which gives the proper water balance within the body tissues. Chlorine is used to form hydrocholoric acid which maintains normal acidity of the gastric enzymes needed for digestion. Manufacturers of table salt in Canada are required by law to add iodine. This is a very simple way to ensure everyone has iodine in their diet. Years ago in parts of Canada where the soil was deficient in iodine, the incidences of goiter was high. When it became mandatory to iodize salt the occurrence of goiter virtually disappeared.

QUESTION:
My doctor said I should gain 25 pounds before my baby is born. Isn't that a lot of weight?

ANSWER:
Your doctor is correct, a mother should at least gain about 25 pounds to produce a baby weighing between 7½ to 9 pounds, which is a desirable, healthy weight. Babies weighing less than 6½ pounds at birth may be prone to such problems as learning disabilities, infections, illnesses and physical handicaps. Poorly fed mothers and mothers who smoke give birth to smaller babies. Your baby is formed from the foods that you eat, and you are your baby's only source of food before birth. Eating the right foods during pregnancy can increase the chances of your baby being born perfectly healthy, both physically and mentally. Eat a balanced diet of milk, an orange, and an egg each day. For further information contact your local health unit, it is very important that you eat properly so that your baby has a good start in life.

Tasty Treat from Caribbean

craig claiborne

Although the islands of the Caribbean are not generally considered a gourmet's paradise, there are numerous creole dishes in that area which merit special attention.

One of the most tempting of foods to be found in restaurants on and around those sun-baked beaches is stuffed crab, generally flavored with small hot chilies that titillate and please the palate.

CRABES FARCIS DES ILES
(Stuffed crabs Caribbean-style)

- 8 tablespoons butter, approximately
- 4 scallions, chopped
- 1 or 2 teaspoons chopped garlic
- 1 hot green chili, finely chopped (seeds optional), or use dried red pepper flakes to taste
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- ¾ to 1 pound crab meat, finely shredded (This does not have to be lump or fancy crab. Snow crab, flaked crab meat or even canned crab may be used)
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh coriander leaves, optional
- 2 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- 6 to 8 tablespoons crab liquid or clam broth, fresh or canned
- 2 cups bread crumbs
- Lime wedges for garnish.

1. Preheat oven to 400 degrees.
2. Melt eight tablespoons butter in a wide, shallow saucepan or skillet.
3. When melted, add the scallions, garlic and chili.
4. Add the curry powder and blend.
5. Add the crab meat.
6. Add the coriander leaves and parsley.
7. Add salt and pepper to taste. Add enough crab liquid to moisten properly. If you want a richer — and better — dish, add two or four more tablespoons butter.
8. Add bread crumbs and blend well.
9. Remove from the heat and use the mixture to fill four to eight clam or scallop shells. Scallop shells are generally preferable for appetizer servings, although clamshells were used in these photographs.
10. Serve with lime wedges, slices or halves.

Yield: Four to six appetizer servings or two to four main course servings..

Obviously, rearranging the furniture helps to make new traffic patterns across the carpeting and distributes carpet wear. But don't use the steam iron to raise carpet pile compressed by heavy furniture on all carpeting. Heat can damage man-made carpet fibres, but not wool. For nylons, dacrons, etc., you need only to mist the matted areas and brush up the pile.

If ever a "Please don't peel the husks" sign is above a pile of fresh-picked corn, how can you tell which are the best ears of the lot? Lightly squeeze the ear. If it's firm and the silk is a dried brown, the ear is table-ready. But if the green husk is beginning to dry out, so are the kernels inside.

What if you suddenly remember you tucked away a few dollars in a savings account a few years ago; will it still be gaining interest? It could depend on the amount in the account. For, some banks deduct a service charge for small accounts which have been inactive over a long period of time. The account could have been eaten up with service charges instead of drawing interest.

Firewood usually costs less now because we don't need it and because weather permits more tree cutting and pruning. You needn't worry too much about buying green wood; it takes two to six months for green wood to dry out and improve its heating value. Drying time depends on the tree variety and weather.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®

...it tells you how

Making sauerkraut is not difficult if you wait until cool fall weather to tackle the job. All you need is an earthenware crock and a cabbage slicer. I bought both in an antique shop for $8.00.

Slice up your cabbage heads by sliding them over the blade (or blades) of the "krautcutter". Then salt the shredded mass at the rate of 3-1/2 tablespoons of seasoning to five pounds of kraut.

Work up five pounds of cabbage at a time, mix in the salt and place the kraut in a good-sized farm crock. Keep mashing the kraut down in the container with a potato masher or similar tool (I use a baseball bat) and fill the crock to within five inches of its top. By then, juice should cover the kraut when you press it down hard with the potato masher, bat or whatever.

Cover the mass with several thicknesses of a clean cloth and top that with a plate that fits the circumference of the crock. Weight the plate down with a rock or other heavy object (a jar of water will do) to keep the kraut down under the juice.

A scum forms on the surface of the kraut juice as the cabbage ferments. Remove the deposit or if—as usually happens—the cloth soaks it up, change the fabric covering often.

When the weather's hot, the kraut may spoil. (I like a temperature of about 65° F best for kraut making, though some prefer 70.)

In about a month, the kraut will stop fermenting. You'll know it because the bubbles will stop coming up in the juice anymore . . . even when you tap the crock.

You can leave the sauerkraut right in the crock, if you can place it where the temperature remains no higher than 55 degrees and if you'll eat it all up before the end of winter. Otherwise, you should can the sauerkraut following the canning instructions in any cookbook.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old boy. Last fall my father promised me a motorcycle if I would complete one year at military school. I agreed, and completed the full year, but when I asked him for the cycle, he said unless I had the agreement in writing—which I don't have—I am out of luck.

Now my mother has made me the same offer. I told her she would have to put it in writing, so she did. I really want that motorcycle, Abby.

If my mother backs out of the agreement, can I take her to court and use my sister as a witness?—CADET.

DEAR CADET: Only a lawyer can give you legal advice. But a parent who fails to uphold his part of a bargain because it wasn't "in writing" is setting a very poor example in integrity.

DEAR ABBY: After 14 years of a childless marriage, my husband and I adopted a beautiful baby girl. (We are white; the baby is of mixed blood.) A year later we were blessed with our own little son! And the following year, another son. We love them all, but here's the problem.

My husband's father, who was against our adopting the little girl in the first place, goes out of his way to hurt the child. He favors the boys with gifts and treats, and leaves the little girl standing without—hurt and envious. Behind our backs he refers to the girl as "that illegitimate half-breed Jeff took to raise."

We don't want to cause trouble, so we make excuses for Grandpa's slights, but how can I stand by and say nothing? When we leave his home I vow I'll never take the children there again, but I always weaken and do, hoping he'll behave better. What can be done?—BOILING.

DEAR BOILING: Let Grandpa know that you will tolerate no more of his cruel conduct. Deny him the privilege of seeing ANY of your children until he agrees to treat all your children equally. If he doesn't agree, it will be HIS loss!

Poor Posture is Easily Acquired

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

When I return to teach in the fall I would like to start a program of good posture with my high school students. I noticed that so many of them have poor posture and do themselves a great injustice by the appearance they present. Is there any literature you can suggest that will be helpful to me and to them? —Mrs. K.C.

Dear Mrs. C.:

Poor posture is easily acquired and often difficult to alter. Yet a concentrated program might be significant in rectifying the sloppy posture of young people.

The posture of an adult reflects the posture acquired as a child or as an adolescent. Attractive posture is very important for one's own physical image and for that presented to others.

The department of education of the American Medical Association has compiled an excellent outline of practical rules for better posture. Psychological as well as physical benefits will accrue if these very sensible suggestions are followed.

Standing: 1. Keep feet slightly apart, weight balanced on both feet, toes straight ahead. 2. Knees straight, relaxed. 3. Hips tucked in, abdomen flat. 4. Chest slightly up and forward. 5. Neck and head balanced over the body, chin in.

Walking: 1. Shoes must be comfortable and fit well. 2. Feet parallel and close together as you step. 3. Point toes straight ahead. 4. Push forward with the back foot. 5. Control the length of the step for an even, rhythmic stride. 6. Swing arms loosely and easily.

Sitting: 1. Keep feet flat on the floor. 2. Thighs should be supported by the chair as far as the curve of the knee. 3. Back should be supported by the chair back, body kept straight from hips to neck.

Working: 1. Stand erect, balanced and relaxed. 2. Correct working heights to prevent slumping or excessive reaching.

Lifting: 1. Stand close to the object, draw it to the center of gravity and lift it with the strong muscles of the legs and shoulders.

Many booklets are available through the American Medical Association and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company on the importance of good posture. Programs instituted early in health education classes can lay the groundwork for good posture in children, leading eventually to good posture in adults.

I am 46. As long as I can remember I have had bulging bags under the eyes. Is it possible to have this fixed by a plastic surgeon without having a complete face-lift? —Mr. A.J.

Dear Mr. J.:

Eyelid surgery can be done alone without any other facial cosmetic surgery. The procedure is not a difficult one. It is a safe operation usually done under local anesthesia, and the results are most gratifying. You should not hesitate to do so and give yourself a "lift."

HOW YOU CAN HELP ELDERLY EAT RIGHT

Food for Thought

By DR. JEAN MAYER and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

If this were the best of all possible worlds, providing a nutritious diet for all our citizens would not be a problem. But the sad fact is that amid the bounty that North America enjoys, there are segments of our population that are often poorly nourished.

It has been estimated that at least a third of our older citizens have incomes below the poverty level. Recent changes in our retirement laws may benefit some of these citizens, but there will still be large numbers of people who have a hard time stretching their limited income to meet the need for an adequate and nutritious diet. And even persons with adequate means may have other problems that make them vulnerable to malnourishment.

For example, an older person living alone may not be able to get out to shop. Arthritis and other disabling diseases may make it difficult for many older individuals to prepare and eat food. Ill-fitting dentures or bad teeth also may make eating difficult. And finally, eating alone day after day can be depressing. As a result, many older persons subsist on tea and toast rather than going to the trouble to prepare meals.

Although the prospects sound grim, fortunately there are many things that we can do to help ensure that our older citizens do get an adequate diet. Here are a few suggestions:

—Lend a neighborly hand. If you know an older person — a relative or a neighbor — who has trouble shopping or preparing food, make it a point to offer your help. Simply offering to drive an elderly person to the supermarket, or picking up a week's supply of groceries for him, may make it possible for an otherwise self-sufficient senior citizen to acquire an adquate diet.

—Help your older friends to benefit from special community programs for the aged. Many communities have special meal programs for older persons. For those who are housebound, there's the "Meals on Wheels" program, which delivers nutritious meals on a daily basis to the needy older person. Community Meals and other such programs offer free or low-cost meals to senior citizens who can get to a community center. These are particularly good from both a nutritional and social standpoint; they not only provide balanced and tasty meals but also give lonely older persons an opportunity to meet new people and to "get out of the house." If you know someone who could benefit from such programs, why not call and get the facts from your local Council on Aging or community social services agency.

—Think about inviting older friends or relatives to share a meal. As we noted earlier, eating alone can be pretty depressing for a lonely older person. Inviting them to eat with your family on occasion gives you an opportunity to brighten their days, as well as ensure that they'll get a good meal.

—Give gifts of food. Canned goods, easy-to-prepare items and foods that are both tasty and easy to chew make welcome and thoughtful gifts. When you make a casserole or one-dish meal, prepare a little extra for your elderly neighbor.

—Make sure your older relative or friend is getting proper medical attention. Depression is a common illness among the elderly, and the illness may manifest itself in loss of appetite. Also, you may want to make a family investment in proper dental work for an aged parent. And if you have a friend or family member in a nursing home, plan to drop by at meal time; if you feel that the food is inadequate, talk to the home's proprietor.

—Press for more programs for the elderly. Urge your legislators to support special programs for our older citizens. Work through your church or other community organizations to provide meals, nutritional and budget counselling, an other help for older persons.

Your efforts not only help today's elderly, they're also a sound investment in your own future well-being.

Ambling Andy Nears End of Line

MIAMI — Sore with sunburn and blisters, 19-year-old Andy West is ready to run the last 240 kilometres of his two-month jogging journey from the Canadian border to Marathon in the Florida Keys.

West reached Miami's downtown courthouse Wednesday, logging the 3,832th kilometre of his run to raise $100,000 for muscular dystrophy.

When it's all over, he'll fly to Las Vegas to present a cheque on Jerry Lewis' Labor Day telethon for muscular dystrophy.

On the run, he has dropped 25 pounds, gone through seven pairs of running shoes, his knees and ankles need tape for support and his hip is bothering him.

NEAR MISS

MONTREAL — Popular Quebec rock singer Johnny Farágo narrowly escaped injury Wednesday when a small plane he was in ran out of gas and made an emergency landing at Drummondville airport.

Real Christie Mystery

NEW YORK — The heirs of Agatha Christie are suing to stop a book — and a film based on it — that offer fictional solutions to the one unexplained mystery in the late thriller writer's life.

The book, Agatha, by Kathleen Tynan, now is in bookstores. The film with the same name and starring Vanessa Redgrave as Miss Christie is due to be released in December.

Both give fictional answers as to why on Dec. 3, 1926, the woman responsible for so many mysteries became one herself — for that was the day the lady vanished.

Miss Christie disappeared for 11 days, touching off a search the likes of which the British had never seen.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Jointly charged with breaking and entering were William Clifford Scott of 1226 Rutland, Thomas Allen Smart of 1241 Acton, and Scott Evan Starck of 860 Fisgard.

Smart and Starck were remanded in custody until Friday for election of their trial method while Scott was released on $600 recognizance with a $100 surety or cash deposit and remanded to the same day. Scott was also ordered to obey a 10 p.m. nightly curfew until the case was completed.

Starck had appeared earlier before Judge Blake Allan and pleaded guilty to one of two counts of breach of probation.

Crown counsel Nicholas Lang said Starck was convicted of theft under $200 and sentenced on July 11 by Judge Fred Green, who suspended the passing of sentence, placed Starck on one year's probation and ordered him to perform 100 hours of community service work.

Lang said Starck worked two days at Harbor Lights and then didn't return. He was then ordered to report July 18 to fill in papers to enrol in the Metchosin Camp program but failed to appear.

Allan handed out a 12-day jail term and set a trial for Sept. 5 for the other breach charge.

One of six inmates at the Jordan River prison camp charged in the April 15 riot which caused an estimated $300,000 damage, including the destruction of an office-gymnasium-stores complex, changed his plea to guilty on a charge of mischief causing wilful damage.

The change of plea was entered by defence lawyer Derek Brindle on behalf of 31-year-old Alfred Eugene Johnny.

Crown counsel N. K. Varma told the court a number of the 38 inmates at the forestry camp at the time got into homebrew from an illegal still and went on a wild rampage in which gasoline was poured over the inside of the building and set on fire.

Varma said Johnny's statement to Sooke RCMP was that he used a chair to break two windows and a light bulb and did not take part in the arson.

Brindle said that prior to the incident, Johnny was considered an exemplary inmate.

Allan said it was an extremely serious matter and sentenced Johnny to 120 days in jail.

Two men charged with an Aug. 22 break-in at Labatt Breweries, 1921 Government, elected trial by judge and jury.

Vic Allan Cervinskas, 23, of 2182 Kerwood, and Barry Granger, 37, of 2850 Richmond, were charged with breaking and entering after being found inside the brewery which had locked out its employees over a labor dispute.

A preliminary hearing date of Jan. 29 was set.

A 29-year-old man described as a transient from Toronto was handed a two-year sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of possession of stolen credit cards.

Julio Kiraly, no fixed address, entered the guilty plea to that charge but pleaded not guilty to a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon, a bayonet.

Varma told the court Kiraly was arrested earlier Wednesday by Sidney RCMP and admitted to police he bought VISA and Chevron credit cards in his possession from a man in Steveston the previous day. The cards belonged to a doctor.

Kiraly said he traded two bayonets for the cards.

Varma listed a criminal record for Kiraly stretching back to July, 1966, with all offences taking place in Ontario and all but one in Toronto. Kiraly had been convicted of five breakings and enterings, two auto thefts, criminal negligence, possession of narcotics, theft, being unlawfully at large, possession of stolen property, possession of a weapon, impersonation and possession of stolen credit cards. His last conviction was on June 30, 1977, for possession of stolen property for which he was fined $50.

A trial date of Jan. 30 was set for the charge to which he pleaded not guilty.

A 47-year-old apartment-block manager was charged with attempting to defraud the Unemployment Insurance Commission of $1,232 by trying to cash six cheques belonging to another person.

Wesley Morrison Chowen, 2107 Dowler, was released on $1,500 recognizance and remanded until next Wednesday for election of his trial method.

Fined for drinking driving were: Howard William Kolson, 33, of Nanaimo, $500, and Michael Stanley Posnikoff, 21, of 291 Regina, $100.

In addition, Posnikoff was placed on six months' probation and ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work.

Refugees Accepted

PARIS (AP) — France has given refuge to 40,520 Indochinese since June 1975 and continues to accept 1,000 a month, the head of a French-Indochinese aid committee told a news conference.

Deer Kills Ceremonial?

It will be the B.C. Wildlife Act versus Indian constitutional rights.

A lawyer for the Union of B.C. Indian Chiefs told Victoria provincial court Wednesday she would use Indian rights as the basis of her defence of two members of the Tsartlip Indian band charged with offences under the act.

Louise Mandell of Vancouver — appearing for 54-year-old Jack Anderson, 10025 MacDonald Park Road in Sidney, and 51-year-old George Charlie, who lives on the West Saanich Road reserve — indicated to Judge Blake Allan that a full day will be required for the trial and asked for time to research the case.

Anderson and Charlie are jointly charged with hunting deer out of season and possession of a deer out of season on May 26 on Pender Island.

Mandell said outside the courtroom that her arguments will centre around claims that natives have traditional territory on the island.

The case will be heard in February.

"GOLDIE HAWN HAS CAPTURED MY HEART. 'Foul Play' is her oyster from start to finish, and she swallows it whole. Never has she looked lovelier, nor has she ever been in a film better suited to her. A deliciously high-spirited romp with the screen's most gifted comedienne in the driver's seat. A real sleeper. The perfect movie escapism to combat heat rash and the heartbreak of psoriasis. 'FOUL PLAY' IS AN ANTIDOTE TO URBAN HUMIDITY, LIMP COLLARS, AND SUMMER LISTLESSNESS."

GARDENING

Try Defining 'a Weed'

Weeds are the bane of a gardener. They are plants to be destroyed at all costs without thought as to the reason for their being present, their value, or why they survive despite our continuous efforts towards eradication.

When the subject enters general conversation it is interesting to ask the speaker to define 'weeds.'

This causes momentary hesitation followed by the naming of one or two plants such) as cooch-grass, thistles, or the climbing convolvulus.

It becomes clear after hearing a few answers that each gardener has a different idea of what constitutes a weed, and some include cultivated plants that refuse to stay where the gardener would prefer them to grow. Some of the Campanulas (Bellflower) and Hypericums (St. John's-wort) are classed as weeds by gardeners for whom they have little attraction.

An apt definition of a weed is "any plant growing out of place, or not wanted within a garden." This leaves the door wide open for the inclusion of any cultivated plant, regardless of its value, being classed as a weed by those not interested in its culture.

The plants which irritate most gardners are those native to the region. These manage to persist in the wild, but in a rich cultivated soil they really flourish. Rarely do we stop to reason that a garden soil which could not support native plants would definitely not support our pampered pets from other lands.

Nor do we recall that these precious plants of ours are weeds in some other parts of the world, for instance, the rhododendrons of China which are slashed down for firewood and the orchids which twine around the sugar cane as convolvulus does around plants in our gardens. Most of our garden treasures are plants which gardeners and farmers of other lands use every means to destroy.

Our common Horsetail (Equisetum) is sold in California nurseries as a "desirable patio plant" at $2.50 wholesale for a gallon can. Oregon Grape and Salal are sought after by English gardners, and many good hybrids are now listed which have been purchased by local gardeners.

Among our native plants are some with higher nutritional value than many of the vegetables we normally grow. Instead of cultivating these natives we prefer to destroy them, eat the less nutritional but conventional vegetables, making up the difference with pills.

The dream of a garden without weeds is impossible to attain. Some weed seeds can lie dormant in the soil for 50 years and will germinate as soon as we turn the soil and bring them to the surface. Weed seeds dropped on the soil this year may plague the gardener 25 to 50 years hence.

When gardeners ask for something that will eliminate all weeds it indicates the wrong approach. We shall never be rid of weeds, nor would it be beneficial if we were for a number of reasons. Weeds form the main content of our compost heaps where they turn into soil that replaces the soil used by our cultivated plants. That alone gives them a high value rating.

All we can do is to control their growth by frequent cultivation, and while we ply the hoe it is worthwhile pondering one truth; as soon as we forsake our garden our precious pets will succumb and the native plants, the weeds we abhor, will take over and thrive in perfect peace and contentment.

It may help us to remember that weeds were here long before we came, and will still be here long after we are gone and forgotten. So let's make our short stay a happy one and spend less time fretting over the plants we call weeds.

Capilano Salmon Run Bonanza

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Bonanza runs of coho salmon are beginning to show up in the Capilano River and hatchery manager Elton Stone estimates there will be a surplus of 50,000 adult fish this year.

There also will be a surplus of up to 20,000 jack coho and 2,000 jack spring, he said Wednesday.

The run would be the best year on the river since the hatchery was set up in 1971. Stone doesn't think the Capilano ever produced more than 10,000 coho in a single year, even before the white man started fishing.

"A 10 per-cent-return from the sea used to be considered good but we have brought this up to 25 per cent and our best year was 1974 when it was 28 per cent," Stone said in an interview. "It gives us a great deal of satisfaction to know that we can improve on nature."

Although Stone believes hatchery fish are far superior to natural fish, he wants to protect a special trait of Capilano coho that make them unique.

"They are back in the river in June and the runs continue until Christmas," he said. "We are trying to protect this characteristic."

Stone also said the coho produced in the hatchery are getting bigger.

"The average weight in the past has been 3.8 pounds but there are lots of six- and seven-pound fish this year which should bring the average weight up to five pounds," he said.

Weather conditions and the availability of food in Georgia Strait contributs much to the size of the fish but Stone said some strains show better growth.

The coho which return on a three-year cycle now have been rehabilitated and Stone believes there may be substantial runs of springs, which return on four-and five-year cycles, as early as next year.

Peace-Keeping Role for Canada?

Times News Services

TEL AVIV — The United States has approached Canada, Australia and New Zealand about the possibility of establishing an international peace-keeping force in the occupied West Bank of Jordan and the Gaza Strip, an Israeli report said today.

A dispatch from Washington in the Jerusalem Post quoted "well-placed U.S. sources" as saying each of the three greeted the approach with "a certain receptiveness."

Carter administration officials also told UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim about the possibility of an international force, the Post said.

Carter may raise the concept at the Camp David summit next week, the paper added.

The U.S. idea, according to the report, would make an international force only part of security arrangements to guarantee Israel's security as part of an overall Middle East peace settlement.

The force would not necessarily replace an Israeli military presence in the West Bank or Gaza during a minimum five-year interim period but the Americans envisage an Israeli troop withdrawal from populated areas to six or eight strategically placed garrisons, the report said.

The Post said, according to its sources, there is no guarantee Israel would accept such a plan but that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat would be expected to agree to such a proposal.

Israel long has oposed the presence of foreign troops on its soil or in the occupied territories on grounds an American presence in the region would mean superpower involvement in the Middle East conflict that could lead to Soviet troops being stationed in a neighboring Arab country.

Egypt said, meanwhile, today it wants a comprehensive Middle East settlement at the meeting and rejects any partial settlement with Israel

Presidential spokesman Saad Zaghloul Nassar said Egypt will reject any temporary or gradual solutions at the conference.

Nassar's statement followed a meeting of President Sadat's National Security Council which was called to decide Egypt's position at the conference.

Nassar said the security council also discussed the country's strategy at Camp David in the light of various "possibilities and expected developments." He did not elaborate.

The purpose of Mubarak's visit to the influential Arab state was not known. The Saudis have expressed approval of the Camp David meeting, saying it might be a final effort for a Middle East peace settlement.

Nasser's statement said the council studied various reports prepared for Camp David concerning "the issue of Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories and the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and their right to self-determination."

Druggie Cons See Woe In Plan

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of prisoners serving sentences for drug offences says British Columbia's compulsory heroin treatment plan will create new problems rather than offer a solution to drug addition.

A written statement signed by 11 prisoners at Matsqui and Mountain prisons in the Fraser Valley says that strict control of heroin and elimination of the black market trade are the only workable solutions.

"The answer to this problem will never be found in repressive legislation or by adopting the failed programs of other countries, but rather in an original, innovative program designed exclusively for the particular problem as it applies to B.C.," the statement says.

The Heroin Treatment Act, Bill 18, says addicts can be committed to a three-year program of treatment which may include incarceration for six months in a treatment facility. It was passed in the legislature last month.

The prisoners say that unbiased legal, medical and sociological studies throughout the years have shown the program's concept to be not only unrealistic but futile, especially when drug addicts have no input into the decisions that most affect their lives.

"Bill 18 is an act of desperation conceived in ignorance and born out of frustration," the statement says. "The one thing this bill has accomplished is to point out the need for an alternative plan for when it fails."

It says a Vancouver group called the Drug Study and Education Society of B.C. has an alternative plan to Bill 18, which is the result of years of study and consultation with addicts.

The society "is made up of citizens from all walks of life who favor a program of drug control based on a modified version of the British system of clinics," it says.

"It is only reasonable to assume that consenting addicts will have to be an integral part of any program if it is to succeed. After all, who knows the problems of addiction better than the addicts?"

The prisoners say strict control of heroin should be the priority of any treatment program.

"With the government in charge of the drug supply, no illicit dealers could compete, nor would they choose to, for the vast profits from the illicit trade would then be eliminated.

Name Switched

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego entry of the one-year-old Pacific Hockey League has hired Ron Ingram to coach the team and announced that the team's nickname has been changed from Mariners to Seahawks.

Oil, Gas Drilling Records

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oil and gas drilling continues to rise at a record pace in British Columbia and after five years of shortages of gas supplies indications are that the shortfall will be virtually eliminated this year, says Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd.

The company says in a special mid-year report to shareholders that 400 to 450 wells will be drilled in the province this year, compared with 166 wells in 1973, 79 in 1975 and 305 in 1977.

With the steadily-improving situation Westcoast has revived diversification studies, said John Anderson, executive vice-president, although "the main thrust of Westcoast will continue to be in its traditional role as a gas-gatherer, processor and transporter."

CPR SHOULD PAY E&N TAB: SKELLY

Premier Bill Bennett has been accused of offering taxpayers' money to subsidize Canada's largest coporation — Canadian Pacific.

Bob Skelly (NDP-Alberni) criticized Bennett's proposal that municipalities with government help should match CP Rail (the E&N's) parent company) in the cost of upgrading the railway's stations along its Island route.

"The premier is suggesting the use of taxpayers' money to correct a situation that is solely the responsibility of the CPR," Skelly said.

He said it was CP Rail that allowed the stations as well as the rail line to deteriorate and so it should be up to CP Rail to pay for the upgrading.

The Island MLA said if the provincial government wanted to spend money on the operation of the railway it should get involved in the operation of a steam train like the Royal Hudson and for a ski excursion between Victoria and Courtenay.

"It's important not to lose the momentum generated by the Vancouver Island E&N steering committee," Skelly said.

Passenger service on the 90-year-old line is scheduled to end Dec. 13 unless the province is successful in its court challenge against a Canadian Transport Commission ruling giving CPR permission to end the dayliner service.

Spy Crisis In Bonn

BONN (UPI) — The West German parliament today called a special session for Friday to consider charges that it has been infiltrated by a Communist spy ring.

The meeting of the Bundestag, the lower house of parliament, was scheduled on the recommendation of its immunity committee.

The committee was expected to ask the house for permission to investigate at least one member of parliament or a member's aide.

News of the special session came on the heels of newspaper reports that a Romanian defector had told the American CIA that as many as eight West Germans in fairly high places were spies for eastern European Communist countries.

It recalled that the discovery of a spy in the chancellory, led to the resignation four years ago of Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Officials said that as a result of the testimony of the defector, they had begun an investigation of Joachim Broudre-Groeger, personal assistant to Egon Bahr, general manager of the ruling Social Democratic Party and a member of parliament.

The Immunity Committee's action confirmed that the spy charges do involve either a member of parliament or a member's aide because parliament would have to give its approval for police to search any parliamentary offices.

Die Welt, a newspaper that circulates throughout West Germany, said today that an aide to Herbert Wehner, the Social Democratic parliamentary floor leader, also is under suspicion.

But the Office of the Federal Prosecutor denied this.

It said "some" people were being investigated but Wehner's aides were not among them.

A Social Democratic Party spokesman refused to comment on a report that the office of Uwe Holtz was involved.

Bus Inquest Adjourned

A coroner's inquest into the death of six-year-old Jesse Robert Day, run over by a bus in James Bay Aug. 22, has been adjourned to Sept. 5.

They said the bike ran into the side of a Vancouver Island Coach Lines bus. The Day boy fell under a rear wheel of the bus.

Bus driver Donald Norris told the jury he was taking the bus on a test drive and was driving at about 10 miles an hour when the accident occurred.

In another matter, St. Jorre decided to forego holding an inquest into the death of a 28-year-old Edmonton man who was killed Tuesday night in a single-car crash at Broad and Pandora.

St Jorre said he will conduct an inquiry instead.

An autopsy performed by Victoria General Hospital pathologist Dr. Garth Walther on Wednesday indicated Allan-Grant Zane died of a ruptured heart.

St. Jorre said he is awaiting further tests to be completed at the forensic lab in Vancouver.

Two passengers in the car — Zane's sister-in-law Sheila Marie Zane, 23, and Alexandra Elizabeth Sefton, 21, were not injured.

Freedom of Press Or a Fair Trial?

HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — After almost a month in jail, New York Times reporter Myron Farber is free, and the fines have stopped piling up against his newspaper. But their fight — to keep Farber's notes private and clear themselves of contempt of court — is far from over.

The case is a major press-court conflict, whose outcome might set an important precedent in defining just what the first amendment to the U.S. constitution means.

It also is a test of a state law designed to safeguard a reporter's, and therefore the public's, access to information by shielding the reporter from orders to reveal confidential material.

On one side is an investigative reporter's claim that his sources must be kept confidential if he is to gather news effectively on behalf of the public.

On the other is the defendant's claim that he has a right to demand access to any information that he thinks might help his defence.

Two years ago, Farber reported about a series of deaths in which Dr. Mario Jascalevich has since been charged with murder. Jascalevich is now on trial, and when the defence subpoenaed Farber's notes, a judge demanded a look at them so he could decide what to do.

Farber refused and was sent to jail. The newspaper, which at the time was refusing to turn over its files, was fined $5,000 a day.

On Wednesday, the state Supreme Court took over jurisdiction of the case from the Appellate Division of Superior Court, stayed all penalties pending an appeal, and scheduled a hearing for Sept. 5.

Farber was released from jail and the daily fine against the newspaper was stayed. But the basic questions remain to be settled.

Lawyers for The Times say the order for Farber to turn over his notes jeopardizes his rights to gather information — and that Farber and The Times have not yet had a proper hearing in which to fight the subpoena on constitutional and statutory grounds.

At this point, The Times says it has turned over all of its own files on the case — which it says reveal nothing new — but it also says it will not press Farber into turning over his notes, which contain confidential material.

Sanctions Fighter Dies at 65

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Rhodesian President John Wrathall, one of the masterminds of his country's battle against international trade sanctions, died Wednesday night of a heart attack. He was 65.

Germans May Buy Tower

Washington Post

NEW YORK — The Deutsche Bank, West Germany's largest bank, has expressed interest in purchasing the billion-dollar World Trade Center from the Port Authority of New York-New Jersey, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Both parties said talks are still preliminary. But they indicated the negotiations are serious about possibly transferring ownership of all or part of the 110-story twin office tower complex that dominates the lower Manhattan skyline.

Iceland Coalition

REYKJAVIK (UPI) — Three left-wing parties announced today they had formed a new Icelandic government to be headed by former prime minister Olafur Johannesson of the Progressive Party.

The Progressives, Social Democrats and the Communists will each hold three cabinet posts with the foreign ministry going to Social Democratic Party chairman Benedikt Groendal, a firm believer in keeping Iceland in NATO.

NEW HOPE IN DIABETES TREATMENT

BOSTON (AP) — Combining insulin with another body chemical may help reduce the high blood sugar levels that can lead to blindness, kidney failure and other complications in persons with severe diabetes, researchers say.

Insulin shots, the usual treatment for diabetes, are not always enough to offset the damaging effects of too much sugar in the blood, especially in people whose diabetes starts in childhood.

Doctors hope to find a way to inject a combination of insulin and the body chemical somatostatin with a needle. If successful, researchers predict it might free diabetics from the often fatal effects of the disease.

So far, the combination has been administered successfully to four patients, but they were bedridden and took the mixture into their veins through tubes.

Dr. Roger Unger, one of the researchers, said it might be up to seven years before the new treatment is available to patients.

U.S. Boosts Prime Rate

Washington Post

NEW YORK — The commercial bank prime lending rate in the United States was boosted one-quarter point to 9.25 per cent Wednesday, continuing the interest rate spiral that has raised the cost of short-term funds nearly 20 per cent since the start of the year.

The Chase Manhattan Bank initiated the latest increase — the sixth this year — and said it boosted the rate it charges its most credit-worthy customers "because the cost of our funds went up. The fundamental reason was the rise in the federal funds rate."

The last time the prime rate stood at 9.25 percent was in February, 1975, on the way down from the record peak of 12 per cent in 1974 when the Federal Reserve Board slammed down hard on the credit brakes and contributed to the steep recession that began late that year.

Most analysts doubt that the prime rate will approach that record level during the current economic cycle, but add that the reserve board faces an increasingly difficult policy problem in continuing to use higher interest rates to dampen economic activity and ease inflation without at the same time inducing a recession.

THUNDERSTORM DEFLATES BLIMP

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The damaged Goodyear blimp Mayflower, torn from its moorings during a thunderstorm, will be dismantled and reassembled to make a new airship, a spokesman for Goodyear said Wednesday.

The blimp, one of five owned by the company, was torn away from a temporary mast Tuesday. It deflated and fell to the ground, injuring one crew member slightly.

Ron Bell, a spokesman for Goodyear, said the gondola and fins will be sent to Akron, Ohio, where they will be refurbished and then sent to Houston, where they will be reassembled.

Bell estimated the damage at between $500,000 and $750,000.

Did Pope Tell Fib To Mom?

MILAN (UPI) — A Milan magazine Wednesday published what it called a photograph of a letter written by Pope John Paul I, aged 10, confessing that he had lied to his mother about a small sum he was given to buy medicine.

The magazine Gente reproduced the three-page letter dated March 5, 1923, which said, in part:

"Dear Mama

"The other day when you sent me to Cencenighe to buy medicine, I took the small sled to be quicker and going there I lost two of the 12 lire you gave me. You did not know how much the medicine cost and when I came back home I gave you five lire although the medicine cost five and I told you seven.

"I didn't have the courage to confess immediately and I thought I would keep quiet about it. But something is pricking my conscience.

"So today I thought a lot and now I confess the truth to you, because, as I said before, my conscience is uneasy. And I thought too of the proverb that says : 'A sin confessed is half forgiven.'

'If you want the two lire I will give them back to you when I have them."

Meanwhile, in Vatican City today the Pope vowed to continue the work of his predecessor in the field of human rights, detente, disarmament and world peace.

Low-Flying Missile Eyed

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Air Force is studying a nuclear-powered cruise missile that could fly low all the way from the United States to the Soviet Union to escape radar detection.

Such a missile would be a significant advancement over the short-ranged cruise missiles President Jimmy Carter has decided to build for the 1980s despite the alarms sounded by Soviet officials.

Although this advanced missile, called ICCM for intercontinental cruise missile, is still an idea rather than a decision to build such a weapon, the Air Force interest gives a glimpse of what could become a new weight on the superpowers' "balance of terror."

A cruise missile is like a small plane without a pilot. It flies its H-bomb to the target by "feeling" its way along with radar beams that compare features on the ground below with the map stored in its mechanical brain.

Right now, the Pentagon is developing two different cruise missiles, the "Alchem" for air-launched cruise missile and the "Slickem" for sea-launched cruise missile. The "Alchem" would be launched from a plane and the "Slickem" from a submarine.

In hopes of soothing Soviet fears about this new weapon designed to penetrate any defense the Russians could build in the 1980s, U.S. negotiators at the on-going strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) have offered to limit the range of the air-launched cruise missile to about 1,500 miles and the sea-launched one to 360 miles.

However, these range limits would remain in force only through 1980. Air Force planners are looking at a cruise missile with virtually unlimited range for the 1990s.

Bizarre Murder Plot 'Fascinating Game'

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — A bizarre plot to murder a millionaire by injecting him with cobra venom was a "fascinating game," a mild-mannered former college teacher testified Wednesday.

Loren Moore, who pleaded no contest to charges he tried to solicit the murder of Miles Durfee, 74, said he had gotten so deeply involved in the "game" he couldn't get out.

The venom was to be injected into Durfee to make it look like he had a fatal heart attack.

Moore is awaiting sentencing. After a plea bargain he agreed to testify againt Mrs. Durfee, whom he met when she was a student a few years ago.

"I know it was wrong to murder," said Moore who once taught business courses. "I knew it was wrong to aid and abet murder. To me it was a fascinating game I was just getting deeper and deeper into and and couldn't get out of it."

Zoo attendant Thornton Willoughby contacted police last year when he learned of the plot against Durfee. Moore was arrested as he left Willoughby's apartment with a syringe and a vial containing what he thought was cobra venom.

Woman Acquitted In Abortion Case

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Her ordeal over, Marla Elaine Pitchford, acquitted of a charge of performing an abortion on herself, burst into tears and said she hadn't believed a jury would send a woman to jail "for something like this."

The former psychology student, charged with aborting her fetus with a knitting needle, was found not guilty by reason of insanity by a jury which deliberated less than an hour.

Her former fiance had testified against her during the trial to gain immunity, and Miss Pitchford's defence lawyer says it may have been his testimony that "tipped the scales on our side."

Dwight Mundy testified Tuesday he had nothing to do with the alleged illegal abortion, but that it had been his idea to visit abortion clinics. Miss Pitchford was turned away because her pregnacy was too far advanced.

"I couldn't believe that they would prosecute someone and put them in jail for 10 to 20 years for something like this," the 22-year-old Miss Pitchford said at a news conference after the verdict.

The law she was brought to trial under, she said, "was not fair as it applied to me." The prosecutors who charged her agreed.

"This trial was just packed with sympathy for Marla Elaine Pitchford," said assistant prosecutor Tom Lewis. "My heart went out to Marla as the defence counsel's did." However, Lewis said he was obligated to prosecute the woman under the law, although he conceded the law's intent was unclear.

Miss Pitchford was charged under a law which prohibits abortion by anyone other than a licensed physician beyond the first three months of pregnancy. It also says a woman — on the advice of a physician — may self-induce an abortion during the first trimester.

UFO OVER PORTUGAL?

"Being visited by ships from outer space makes us more cosmopolitan and helps our entry into Europe (European common market)," the newscaster said.

SCIENTOLOGISTS SUE NEWSPAPER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Church of Scientology has filed a $1-million suit against the Los Angeles Times and two of its reporters, alleging conspiracy to interfere with civil rights.

The lawsuit, filed in federal court Wednesday, says the newspaper printed a series of articles on the church which were written by two reporters who acted in concert with the FBI and the U.S. justice department.

The newspaper then published information about the government's investigation of the church, intending to create "an unfavorable climate" regarding the church, the suit claims.

The complaint further alleges that the Times articles were influential and prejudicial to members of the judiciary who must rule on litigation involving the Church of Scientology.

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir has entered a hospital for a routine medical checkup and is to be released in several days, a spokesman for Hadassah Hospital said today.

The newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth said the 80-year-old Mrs. Meir entered the hospital Sunday complaining of back and spinal pains. The hospital spokesman declined to confirm or deny the report.

"Mrs. Meir went into the hospital for a routine checkup," the spokesman said.

Talks Recess at Geneva

GENEVA (UPI) — The 30-nation Disarmament Conference ended an eight-week summer session today and adjourned until January when France is expected to join and possibly China as well.

The session concluding the talks for this year was the 805th since the conference began March 14, 1962.

It began with 17 nations participating, inreased to 23 countries and then to 30.

France and China have never taken part, the French questioning the value of the conference and the Chinese demanding a world forum for disarmament.

China has not given any such indication as yet.

Despite years of talk the conference has failed to get a total ban on nuclear testing and a treaty outlawing chemical weapons.

Morals Whip Lash Hits 55 FBI Agents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dozens of FBI agents have been disciplined in a crackdown against such "criminal, dishonest or immoral conduct" as drunkenness, drug abuse and sexual impropriety, it was reported Wednesday.

The General Accounting Office said 69 FBI employees — 55 agents and 14 clerks — were disciplined for violations of the bureau's "high standards of conduct" from January 1977 through February 1978.

The congressional investigative agency said another 22 FBI employees resigned or retired before they could be disciplined as part of the crackdown against violations both on and off the job.

The GAO — in a review of allegations against 843 of the FBI's 19,500 agents and clerks during the period — said the disciplinary action included oral reprimands, letters of censure, unpaid leaves and dismissals.

"Employee conduct must not only be proper but always appear to be proper," the the GAO said in a report to the Government Operations subcommittee on government information and individual rights.

The agency said the FBI has improved enforcement of the bureau's personnel standards by the creation of an Office of Professional Reponsibility to coordinate internal investigations.

The report said FBI handbooks "stress that employees must not engage in criminal, dishonest or immoral conduct on or off the job."

The GAO said charges of "personal misconduct were more often found to have some substance than any other category" of violations with 29 percent of such cases involving in disciplinary action.

It said "personal misconduct" includes such things as misuse of intoxicants, drug abuse, sexual impropriety or "involvement in situations unbecoming an employee of a law enforcement agency."

Other forms of misconduct were abuse of investigative authority, mishandling an assignment, shoplifting, accepting bribes and unlawful release of information, the report said.

A VOICE FROM BEYOND GRAVE LEADS TO KILLER

CHICAGO (UPI) — A voice that allegedly belonged to a woman dead for six months helped a homicide investigator find the woman's killer, the investigator has testified.

A voice issuing from the mouth of Remibias Chua identified itself as the voice of Teresita Basa — killed six months earlier — and told detective Joseph Stachula who killed her, he said.

"I am Teresita Basa," Stachula said the voice told him. He said the voice then identified Miss Basa's slayer as Allen Showery, 32, a respiratory technician at Edgewater Hospital.

NAIROBI (AP) — President Jomo Kenyatta, who led Kenya to independence from Britain 15 years ago, was buried today in a marble-walled tomb on the grounds of Kenya's parliament building.

Vega Fuel Tanks Explosive Nader Warns Consumers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The fuel tank on the Chevrolet Vega is under U.S. government scrutiny because it can explode on impact like the tanks of some Ford Pintos and Mercury Bobcats, according to consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

Nader and Byron Bloch of Los Angeles, an auto-safety consultant, told a news conference on Wednesday the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is checking the Vega.

Bloch also said the Pinto gasoline-tank problem "is only the tip of the iceberg," and added that some Ford Mavericks and Mercury Comets have the same defect.

General Motors declined comment on the allegation and Bob Cook, a spokesman for the safety agency, said he could not confirm or deny the Vega is under investigation.

"We never leap off with such a charge until we are pretty sure of ourselves," he said.

Neither Nader nor Bloch provided statistics or other backup materials relating to the allegations about Vegas, Mavericks or Comets.

HAMMOND TAKES SQUEAKER LEAD

JUNEAU (UPI) — Alaska Gov. Jay Hammond squeezed past former Gov. Walter J. Hickel by a mere 37 votes as election officials completed tabulation early today of 6,000 "questioned" ballots cast in the Aug. 22 Republican gubernatorial primary.

Because of the closeness of the vote, all ballots must be recounted under state law. Election officials said the recount will probably take place the second week of September.

Hickel had held a 450-vote lead over Hammond before tabulation of the questioned ballots — from persons who voted outside their precincts during the election — began Wednesday.

Brown Slashes $1B From Calif. Taxes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown, who joined the Proposition 13 crusade only after its landslide victory, chopped another $1 billion off state taxes Wednesday by signing a bill to cut state income taxes.

The income tax cut — which comes on top of Proposition 13's $7-billion cut in property taxes — will slice taxes an extra $168 for the average California family of four with a $20,000 income.

The combined income-tax and property-tax cuts will reduce the average homeowner's annual tax bills by $750 to $1,000.

Each taxpayer will get at least a $75 tax cut, while each couple filing a joint return will realize at least a $150 tax cut, unless their taxes already are less than those amounts.

Senior citizens, both renters and homeowners, get up to $375 each in additional tax cuts under the income-tax-cut bill.

The state's general budgetary fund surplus will subsidize the cuts, Brown said after signing the bill.

Ottawa Foots Bill For Judicial Jaunt

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least 15 federal judges from Quebec are in Vancouver on an all-expenses-paid trip — to improve their English.

The English course, which is organized by the Commissioner for Federal Judicial Affairs, is costing Canadian taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars.

A spokesman for the judges, deputy Commissioner Roger Collette, said in an interview Wednesday night: "I have to tell you that we don't want any publicity.

"Because we are sparing nothing for these judges the population may get frustrated. It is a very special expense — it is the taxpayer who pays it.

"They all speak English, but they come here to improve it.

"We absolutely don't want any publicity. We don't want a member of the House to stand up and raise it.

"We have been to some other places before. This year it is Vancouver. Next year it may be in the Maritimes.

"Some of them have their wives staying — but a judge who travels pays his wife's expenses."

Collette told a Vancouver reporter: "It is interesting for you, you have your work to do, but not for the population at large.

"We restrict publicity on this function. It is strictly restricted — on my orders.

"I am the deputy commissioner. That is enough. You place me in a very embarrassing situation. Please be nice with me. I won't have any grudges. I am in authority," he said.

Collette refused to disclose how much the course is costing or name the judges, who are understood to be from both criminal and civil courts.

Most of them arrived in Vancouver on Aug. 20 and are due to fly home to Quebec Friday after a 12-day stay.

Asked how they are managing to circumvent the Air Canada strike, Collette said: "It is all settled. They are going on CP Air. We have some heavy people, and they made arrangements and I have phoned many places across Canada."

A spokesman for the Bayshore Inn refused to say how much the judges are paying, but he said they are receiving a special rate for government employees. The judges also are renting five of the hotel's conference rooms.

John Fraser, Conservative MP for Vancouver South, said Wednesday he intends to raise the matter in the Commons.

"I'm appalled. You cannot explain this to taxpayers," Fraser said.

"I have to report back to 75,000 electors and I would have no success in trying to justify this jaunt.

Note of Optimism In AirCan Dispute

MONTREAL (CP) — Both union and management negotiators in the Air Canada dispute were optimistic today as they prepared to resume talks.

The two sides had been scheduled to meet in the morning at a downtown hotel here. But the talks were put off until the afternoon after both sides requested a delay.

On Wednesday night, the two sides held a 90-minute "exploratory" meeting to set the stage for a full resumption of talks today.

The meeting was described as a "frank discussion" by Air Canada negotiator Norman Radford, who said the union made a few suggestions on how "the log jam might be broken."

Chief union negotiator Barry Shaw echoed Radford's words, but refused to give details on what was discussed.

Air Canada - which claims to be losing $3 million a day - shut down operations last Friday, locking out members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers (IAM) after they had staged wildcat walkouts Thursday at most major Canadian airports.

Talks had resumed after the weekend, but broke off again Tuesday when three of four Montreal lodge representatives in the union's 13-member national negotiating committee resigned to protest the committee's acceptance of two clauses proposed by the airline.

The contentious clauses would provide for longer disciplinary suspension periods and a new job classification for some women employees.

The airline has laid off most of its employees, including pilots, cabin attendents and ticket agents.

Cara Operations Ltd., which supplies food to Air Canada flights and operates restaurants and snack bars at Toronto International Airport, has reduced its Toronto staff to 500 from 900.

Tom Plewes, vice-president of finance for the company, said 1,100 of Cara's 2,900 hourly workers across Canada have been laid off.

Travel agents say some people are adding to the chaos by clogging telephone lines to other airlines with ridiculous requests, such as trying to change bookings for their Christmas holidays to airlines other than Air Canada.

Jobs Plan Firmed

OTTAWA (CP) — Details of federal job creation and industrial development programs, firmed up Wednesday at a 4½-hour cabinet meeting, will be announced within 10 days.

Manpower Minister Bud Cullen emerged from the session to say he will have a major announcement on a program already approved.

But "timing of the announcement" has not been decided. The government wanted to pick a time they can clearly get their message across to the public.

The minister is expected to cut the unemployment insurance program and funnel more money into job creation.

Industry Minister Jack Horner said he expects to outline his program of new incentives for business sometime next week.

Earlier Wednesday, Cullen said, the cabinet was discussing how to reduce federal spending on unemployment insurance.

Prime Minister Trudeau, meanwhile, will probably decide next week, following a visit to Rome for Pope John Paul's installation, whether to risk his parliamentary majority in a fall election that would likely be called for Nov. 6.

HITCH OVERCOME

B.C. Beer Strike Finally Over

The summer-long brewery strike ended this afternoon when the Victoria local of the Canadian brewery union announced all remaining problems had been resolved.

Workers were on the job this afternoon for the first time since the strike-lockout began in May.

"As of yesterday there were some problems with the return to work agreement which the membership did not agree with. We had another meeting this morning.

"We have now left the office of the company and all issues have been clarified, geniality has been restored and we will be going back to work momentarily."

Momentarily, he said, meant immediately and most employees would be on the jobs this afternoon.

While union members voted Wednesday to approve a new agreement, the Victoria local voted 80 per cent to stay out until a dispute over five brews made by supervisory employees during the strike.

The agreement affects breweries in Victoria, Vancouver and Creston.

Labatt's workers at Victoria accepted the Brewery Employer Labor Relations Association two-year contract that provides an average wage of $9.53 an hour this year and $10.10 in 1979, but voted 80 per cent against returning to work until the five brews which were started by supervisors during the lockout are dumped.

Although the union negotiating committees recommended rejection, workers at Labatt's New Westminster plant voted 51 per cent in favor of the proposal and in Victoria approved it by 70 per cent. Molson workers voted 57 per cent acceptance and Carling O'Keefe voted 74 per cent approval.

Because wages at the three breweries, which bargained independently until this year, have been equalized, the increases vary in the first year of the agreement. At Labatt's wage increases will range from 75 cents to $1.22 an hour, at Carling's they jump 83 cents an hour and at Molson's 55 cents an hour in 1978. Wages at all breweries will go up 52 cents an hour in 1979.

Cabinet Will Suspend Pot-Puffing Teachers

In the future, the provincial cabinet will suspend the teaching certificates of pot-smoking teachers, Education Minister Pat McGeer said today.

McGeer strongly criticized the Coquitlam school board which Tuesday reinstated teacher Dennis Hilton after he had been convicted of possession of marijuana.

Hilton received a conditional discharge and when a Crown appeal of the sentence failed, the Coquitlam school board said it had no other choice than to reinstate him.

"To say I'm disappointed in Coquitlam's actions would be a profound understatement," McGeer said at a press conference today.

But McGeer, saying he believes in the autonomy of individual boards, said he would not overrule the decision in this case.

But he said in the future the provincial government will "take the matter into our own hands."

The minister said this means the province will exercise a little-used section of the Public Schools Act empowering the cabinet to rescind a teacher's licence for cause.

He admitted such a move would likely be challenged in the courts but said that won't stop him from attempting to impose the clause.

The public must be reassured the school system will not tolerate such behavior from its teachers, the minister said.

A conditional discharge may have been an adequate position for the courts to take but "we expect a higher moral standard on the part of our teachers."

BOAT TIP FATAL

Dave Carpenter of Bella Bella, in his late 60s, died of undetermined injuries before he could be taken to hospital.

The mishap, which will be investigated by the department of transport, occurred about 7 p.m.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said although there was a strong ebb tide at the time of the mishap, weather conditions were good.

The fishing vessel was not loaded, he added.

Five other people were aboard the vessel and were taken aboard the fishing vessel Our Own.

They were taken to Campbell River by the search and rescue vessel Relite.

Rights Group Headed By Nanaimo Trustee

Nanaimo school board chairman Margaret Strongitharm has been appointed chairman of the B.C. Human Rights Commission, Labor Minister Allan Williams announced Wednesday.

"I am confident Mrs. Strongitharm's appointment will provide the commission with strong, dynamic and sensitive leadership," Williams said.

The announcement ended an eight-month silence by Williams on the future of the commission.

He had been repeatedly pushed by NDP members to appoint a new commission when the original one headed by Victoria bishop Remi De Roo was disbanded Dec. 31.

Williams denied the cabinet was split over whether to let the commission die, as suggested by Karen Sanford (NDP—Comox), the party's labor critic.

Mrs. Sanford said in a news release Wednesday the eight-month delay in announcing new members was because a "clique of hard-nosed, far-right ministers" would not accept any list of candidates.

"Mrs. Sanford is absolutely wrong," Williams said. "There is no division in the cabinet whatsoever."

Mrs. Strongitharm is the wife of Nanaimo lawyer Ted Strongitharm and has had extensive experience in a wide variety of local, provincial and national organizations.

Pump Priming Urged for Tourism

OTTAWA (UPI) — A federally appointed task force called Wednesday for a wide range of government incentives to reverse the decline in the Canadian tourism industry that led to last year's $1.7 billion travel deficit.

"The main problem is that the Canadian travel product is not meeting the demand of its two main groups of customers," said the 139-page report of the 65-member task force appointed last March.

"Canadians are increasing their travel abroad — and particularly to the United States — at a rate far exceeding the growth of their domestic travel. Americans are coming to Canada in steadily decreasing numbers."

But Lawson said the group, representing an industry that employs 900,000 Canadians and contributed $10 billion to the gross national product in 1977, believed most improvement in the travel industry would have to come from government.

"When our subcommittee got down to specifics one theme kept recurring — the inability of the tourism industry to cope with the legislation and the endless regulations which have been imposed upon us by all levels of government," Lawson told a news conference.

The numerous changes requested of the government included reductions in federal gasoline and aviation fuel tax, exempting hotel furnishings from sales tax, reducing sales taxes to match those in competing U.S. areas and a 25 per cent rebate on property tax.

The industry group requested that tips be considered in the calculation of wages, requirements on statutory holidays be eased and welfare and unemployment insurance payments be tightened because they "sap the general desire to work."

The task force said governments should consider tourism as "an industry in its own right" with the special planning and considerations made for other parts of the economy."

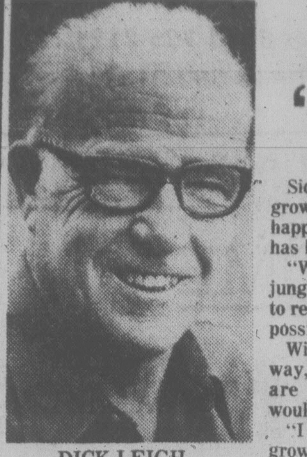
Sidney Mayor's Fighting 'Concrete Jungle' Growth



DICK LEIGH

Sidney is ripe for massive growth but it's not going to happen if Mayor Dick Leigh has his way.

"We don't want a concrete jungle here. We want Sidney to remain a village as long as possible."

With a water pipeline on its way, pressures by developers are fierce, he said, but it would be wrong to give in.

"I realize we must have growth here — a town must grow or it will die — but we must have controlled growth."

The population of Sidney is estimated at 7,400 and could double in three or four years if things got out of hand, the mayor said.

"I would like to see a limit of about 400 or 500 a year. Ideally, I would like to see the town grow to about 12,000 and then level off. We want to remain a quiet community."

Sidney has placed a moratorium on all development until it receives a report from a professional planner in about four months.

After that, it will proceed slowly and carefully and will stick to its community plan.

Leigh said council had held up 700 building permits awaiting word on the water pipeline. Once the pipeline was approved, all permits were given the go-ahead.

"At the time it seemed the right thing to do," Leigh said. "The only reason they were held up was a lack of water. Once the water situation was clear, we gave the approvals."

In retrospect, it might have been a mistake, he said. As it turned out, construction started on 440 permits.

Council acted to rescind approval of the other 260 permits when it became evident Sidney was over-building. Holders of the 260 permits had not started any construction.

"Everything is waiting for the community plan," Leigh said. "We can not afford to have uncontrolled growth in Sidney."

The town could make the mistake of expanding faster than the need, he said.

For example, in walking around Sidney, he had noticed a large number of For Sale signs.

"Why are we approving new construction when there is no shortage of homes in Sidney? We make a mistake if we listen to developers without investigating the needs of the community."

Still on the books for the longer term is a plan to reconstruct the storefronts in Sidney to create a single theme.

This would give the town a community look and would be attractive to tourists.

But it is a matter of first things first, he said.

Flagrant Vegetable Stealing Riles Fraser Valley Farmers

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Farmers in the Fraser Valley are organizing patrols of their fields to stem what they say is an unprecedented outbreak of carrot, corn and cucumber stealing.

Seeland said that produce pilferers used to restrict their harvesting to night-time, but now they're "parking by the road, jumping over a ditch, and picking the stuff in broad daylight."

"The cucumbers weren't destined for anyone's private use. My guess would be that they were sold to a roadside stand."

RCMP Constable Murray Ross of Abbotsford said the department has helped organize farmers to watch for thieves, but has discouraged farmers from getting personally involved.

"We've told them not to create a problem for themselves by trying to detain these people," he said. "All they have to do is get a licence number and a description and we'll take care of the rest.

Ross said the usual fine for minor theft is $100 to $200.

Air Charter Rules Made More Flexible

OTTAWA (CP) — Regulatory changes affecting domestic and international advance booking charters were announced Wednesday by the Canadian transport commission.

A commission statement said the amendments will reduce the advance booking period to 30 from 45 days and also reduce to one week the minimum length of stay for transatlantic charters.

Although the 30-day period had been temporarily in effect since June, the minimum length of stay for transatlantic charters was 14 days in summer and 10 days in winter.

The statement said the changes will give passengers greater flexibility.

NOR SNOW, NOR SLEET NOR AIRCAN STRIKE . . .

Letters from outside the Greater Victoria area may be slower getting here because of the Air Canada strike but they will definitely get here, according to a Victoria post office spokesman.

He reports mail normally shipped by Air Canada is now being transported by rail or truck.

"The mail goes out every night but it is a little slower doing it this way," he says. "There might be delays up to a couple of days or so.

"However, everything will come through without too much of a wait."

B.C. Fisherman Fined by U.S.

SEATTLE (CP) — A Canadian fisherman was fined and his catch confiscated after being convicted of fishing inside United States waters.

Joseph Negero of Vancouver was fined $1,000 Wednesday but U.S. authorities returned his 9.6-metre gillnetter.

Maximum penalty for the charge is confiscation of the boat, a $50,000 fine and six months in jail.

Negero was the first Canadian taken into custody by U.S. authorities since the breakdown in negotiations on the reciprical fishing agreement between the two countries.

Lawyers Put BNA Report On Shelf

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association today shelved indefinitely a $200,000 report on the constitution.

A resolution doing this was hammered out Wednesday as a compromise. A workshop study on the report Wednesday reached no conclusions.

The resolution drew support from association members who were strongly opposed to a recommendation that the Queen be replaced as head of state by a Canadian.

In debate on the resolution, Brendan O'Brien, of Toronto, said the bar association, as a result of the head-of-state proposal, has been condemned as an irresponsible group and has lost some members, "at least in Ontario."

The resolution said the recommendations of the research study "have been erroneously represented by some as being the position of the Canadian Bar Association." This was not true.

The resolution refers the report to provincial branches for study.

"What is the association going to do?" A.J. Campbell of Montreal asked.

"Is it going to take any position on the constitution? Is the report going to carry forever the stamp of no approval?"

Campbell, speaking from the floor, got no reply from the chairman or anybody else.

Peter Power, of Red Deer, said he doubts whether more than one or two branches will actually study the report.

Power said it can sit on the shelf because it sets no time limit for action.

Some delegates, pushing the resolution, said the report may be raised again at next year's annual meeting.

THE Crystal Pool, that ugly duckling among local recreation centres, re-opens Friday after four months of intensive cosmetic surgery, including installation of a swirl pool, above, and extensive new tiling and painting. But the question still remains: Will the public respond?

Can a Facelift Help Crystal?

By MARK HUME
Times Staff

Can white elephants be made to fly?

That's the question Victoria Ald. Robin Blencoe has to be asking himself these days as the city's Crystal Pool, a $2.5 million recreational blunder that never got off the ground, prepares for its Friday re-opening.

The Crystal has been shut for four months while workmen toiled on a dozen different projects that all had one objective — getting people in the doors.

Since the pool first opened that's been the main problem. The building's exterior gives a distinctly wrong impression as to what's inside, and because of that relatively few people were going in to see what they were missing.

"This has all got to be changed," said Blencoe, waving to the front of the building and the lobby. "We want to warm up this entrance area — it's just too institutional."

In addition the Crystal had to be given something more than good looks — she had to offer multiple recreational facilities. She had to be given a new life.

City council couldn't come up with a magic wand to help parks and recreation committee chairman Blencoe do the job, so they gave him the next best thing, cash. Some $237,000 ($77,000 is to come from the province) has been budgeted to save the Crystal before it sinks into oblivion.

The pool is considered the most beautiful in the region, with a pair of giant plexiglass domes shining down from the roof. But the building that houses the spacious pool, its diving platforms and slides, is ugly.

"We're spending all this money just to try and change this facility from what it was — an institutional, single purpose pool that was really just designed for competitions — into a social and recreational centre."

Blencoe said the Crystal was built before total recreation facilities, like Oak Bay's, were conceived.

"I don't think Victoria's council was in tune with what was happening at the time."

To make the Crystal more attractive a new swirlpool has been added, along with a weight training facility and a pair of saunas.

Although the pool re-opens Friday at 1 p.m., there's still a lot of work to be done, including the "warming up" of the lobby area.

Blencoe says a lot of repainting has to be done in the building to give it more pleasing color schemes, and $3,000 worth of plants will be brought in to lend atmosphere.

Will it all work? Will Blencoe get the school kids, the old age pensioners, the businessmen, the families? Will the changes be enough to motivate the people who've been ignoring the Crystal for the last seven years?

"I honestly don't know if this will do it," says Blencoe. "But I can say that as far as spending the money, this is it."

There are other things he wants done to the centre — including greatly enlarging the coffee area and getting the place a liquor licence — but most of those are organizational things such as new recreation programs.

"Hopefully we have turned the corner in terms of the Crystal being known as a white elephant. I think we can make it a social centre as well as a physical one," he says.

That may be asking for miracles, but the city's parks chairman doesn't have much choice in the matter. The Crystal is here to stay.

SAANICH SLATES PUBLIC HEARING

Industrial Park Blow-Up

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Saanich council agreed by a 5 — 3 margin Wednesday to call a public hearing Sept. 14 on its proposed development of an industrial park on Interurban Road near the Camosun College campus.

The vote at a special council meeting came after 90 minutes of sometimes rancorous, emotional debate which included:

The charges involving the planning department were aired by Ald. John Mika and Stanley Jobb, project director of the B.C. Development Corporation. (BCDC has agreed to sell Saanich more than 100 acres of Crown land at the Interurban site, and also to act as project manager in the proposed industrial development).

Both accused the Saanich planners of producing a heavily-biased impact study opposed to the development, saying the report is laced with untrue statements, irrelevancies, inconsistencies and distortions.

Mika claimed that instead of preparing an impact study on the Interurban proposal the planners had presented "a brief for the Royal Oak park" — the development proposal which council had killed last March.

Jobb told council the questionnaire used to ascertain neighborhood opinion was "loaded" to solicit opposition with questions of the 'Are-you-still-beating-your-wife?' type.

In the course of Mika's lengthy denunciation of the planning department, when Mayor Mel Couvelier abruptly rejected a point-of-order protest by Ald. David Paterson, the latter stormed out of the chamber shouting angrily.

He was closely followed by Ald. Fred Severson but both returned to their seats within five minutes and Paterson later apologized for his behavior. In return, he received an apology from the mayor.

Couvelier conceded he had rejected Paterson's point of order too hastily, but said even had he weighed it more carefully he would still have reached the same conclusion.

The alderman's protest at Mika's theme was invalid, Couvelier said, because the impact study had included two references to the Royal Oak proposal.

Paterson and Severson were joined by Ald. Geoff Vantreight in voting against the motion to refer the matter to a public hearing.

The trio, together with Ald. Ian Cass, had voted for the proposed industrial development at Royal Oak in the March public hearing.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson, who had urged council's Advisory Planning Commission to recommend scrapping the Interurban industrial park proposal, accepted an invitation to respond to the criticism.

He pointed out that the effects — particularly environmental consequences — of a major development in a rural area are bound to be more numerous than in an urban area.

Laurenson agreed that the impact study's references to the Royal Oak proposal were "unfortunate," but denied that his department was attempting to resuscitate the matter.

"Staff has long since accepted the decision made by council, that it is dead," he said. "This is in no way a brief for or a comparison with Royal Oak."

Laurenson said he regretted most the attacks against his colleagues, "which I don't think have added to the dignity of this chamber."

He said they had done an honest, professional job and he hoped they would have an opportunity to reply to the allegations.

"The slurs upon my own honesty and professional competence, made in the privilege of this chamber, I consider reprehensible," he added.

Immediately after Laurenson's remarks Cass moved a vote of confidence in the planning department. The motion was carried with only Mika opposed.

In his report to the APC Laurenson expressed concern that the principle of urban containment — a basic tenet of municipal planning policy for almost 15 years — would be violated by the Interurban scheme.

He said the department felt this would be too high a price to pay, even for the projected "windfall" profits of $2.7 million that Saanich would enjoy between 1983 and 1986, and the subsequent tax revenue from the industrial park.

Paterson said Jobb himself was biased in his allegations of bias against the planning department, and his remarks to council were in the same category as any developer making a sales pitch for a project from which there was profit to be made.

Among his specific complaints on the impact study, Mika said the planning department had "vigorously pushed and insisted upon" the exclusion of 103 acres of good Royal Oak farmland from the Agricultural Land Reserve, yet was now deeply concerned about the loss of 60 acres of poorer ALR land in the Interurban area.

Cass deplored the fact that a council debate had again descended to sniping at personalities. He said although he wanted to see the proposal discussed at a public hearing, he would vote against the actual rezoning unless presented with fresh arguments that would change his mind.

Severson said he could not support the Interurban proposal for the reasons given in the impact study, and urged council to heed the advice of the professionals in its planning department.

Paterson said he was prepared to attribute the inadequaces in the planners' study to the tight time schedule of only eight weeks they were given to prepare it.

Just because Saanich was both umpire and player in this development game, he said, was no justification for breaking its own rules against urban sprawl's intrusion into the rural areas of the municipality.

Heritage $1M Eyed For South Park

The oldest functioning school in the Capital Region was recommended for heritage designation today by Victoria's cultural development committee and could be headed for a $1 million renovation.

The committee unanimously agreed that South Park School should be saved but couldn't agree on who should pay for it and what the 84-year-old building's use should be after refurbishing.

Committee chairman Ald. Ron McKenzie said the red brick schoolhouse on lower Douglas Street opposite Beacon Hill Park should be salvaged before it falls into total disrepair like the old Crystal Garden.

McKenzie said it would cost $1 million to bring it up to standard and he thought federal funds could probably be tapped.

He said the school would be the perfect site for a residential theatre.

But Ald. Robin Blencoe said the structure has been serving usefully as a school since 1894 and should continue in that role.

"The school board has virtually abandoned the building in recent years and they're to blame for its decrepid condition. We should knock on the door of the school board and tell them they have a responsibility to maintain it," said Blencoe.

The committee limited its motion to a recommendation to council simply calling for heritage designation. The other questions will be delt with at a later date.

'EARTHQUAKE' WAS THE NAVY

A naval exercise which produced some explosions around 10:30 Wednesday night had some Victorians wondering if there had been another earthquake.

The Esquimalt-based destroyer HMCS Gatineau was carrying out demolition exercises between 7 p.m. and midnight on Bentinck Island off Metchosin.

An armed forces spokesman said today the sound of the explosions was probably carried because of the low overhead clouds at that time.

Canada Council Grant Slated for Symphony

Manager Jean Hunter said Wednesday, Hugh Davidson, Canada Council's music head, visited Victoria recently, was favorably impressed and gave a firm commitment that a grant will be made.

Size of the grant is not known but the society earlier asked for $140,000, and received $25,000 as interim operating money for the summer concerts.

Hunter said symphonies never get all they seek.

Entering Tube Race is Easy

Entering the Great Inner Tube Race is as easy as well, as easy as getting wet in the Gorge.

Contestants find a partner, get an old inner tube from a truck tire place or junkyard, and fill out the official entry form. The $5 entry fee goes to help amateur sport.

Entries can be mailed to the Victoria Times, which is sponsoring the race, or may be taken to any participating sporting good store at eight locations.

Contestants must be at least 16 and must wear a lifejacket in case of falling off the tube and footwear because at the end of the race they must carry their tube up the beach to the finish line.

A spontaneous parade will precede the race. There is no need for advance registration for the parade. Entrants need only bring their decorated vehicle to the marshalling grounds at Gorge Park before the noon start on Sunday, Sept. 10. Parade marshal is bathtubber Frank Ney, mayor of Nanaimo.

Esquimalt to Vote On Library Move

Esquimalt council will hold a special meeting Sept. 6 to take a second vote on the move of the Greater Victoria central library.

Approval of the move to the new provincial government building on Broughton was needed by all four core municipalities. Because Esquimalt was the only municipality opposed, Mayor Art Young exercised his privilege and referred the proposal back to council.

Young is in favor of the move, but other aldermen want the library to own its own building, rather than lease the space from the government.

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the municipal hall.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved lower today amid concerns over an economic slowdown and rising interest rates.

The government said the index of leading economic indicators — a barometer of the possble future course of the economy — fell 0.7 per cent in July. The decline was the first since January and its report followed news that new factory orders slowed sharply last month. The 9¼ prime rate spread to several more major banks today after Chase Manhattan kicked off the round of quarter-point increases Wednesday. The nation's big retailers, meanwhile, reported sizable gains in sales over the last four weeks.
